RTY-FOURTH YEAR. LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1923. TWO CENTS.

TWO FIGHT FOR GIRL

TWO WOMEN IN CLAIM FOR GIRL

CHICAGO, June 11.—Judge Joseph B David assumed the role of modern Solomon today when he began a hearing to determine which of two women gave birth to a child

Mrs. Julia Waszny, thirty-six and Mrs Nicholas Lenz, thirty, both claim to be the blood parent of little Leona Felicia whose age is disputed at four and five.

Mrs. Waszny took the witness stand and produced a Polish birth certificate she alleged proved her claim. Judge David announced that he will cause passports to be checked as the witness said the little girl was born in Poland in 1918

Soon after the alleged birth, Mrs Waszny came to America, she said, and for a time turned the child over to Mrs Lenz to keep.

Mrs Lenz put in the counter-claim that the child was born here in 1919 adn that she gave it to Mrs. Waszny to care for and paid her.

Mrs Lenz now has the girl.

Mrs Waszny cannot talk English she testified before a crowded court room in Polish thru an interpreter The girl talks Polish and English equally well. Mrs. Lenz' attorney claims that the birth was thru a caesarian operation and that her claims to parentage will be proven by scars on both her self and the child

Judge David emulated the drastic methods of Solomon by intimating strongly that the woman "found to be lying will be sent to jail."

Neither flinched at the threat.

KANSAS COURT LAW IS INVALID

WASHINGTON, June 11.—In a decision which inferentially affected the entire power of the Kansas industrial court the United States supreme court declared unconstitutionel that part of the state law creating the court which empowered it to fix wages for employes of private business concerns in Kansas

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The supreme court today held, in a suit brought by the Charles Wolf Packing company that the drastic regulations attempted by the Kansas industrial court act on the principle that certain industries are affected with the public interest is clearly invalid under the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution.

Under this guise of "public interest" employers and labor have been required to submit differences to the industrial court for compulsory arbitration. Thus the court has fixed wages.

The state has also used the industrial court to keep prices of essentials —food, clothing and fuel, chiefly—at reasonable levels

The court's action was based chiefly on that section of the Kansas law which forbids workmen the right to strike.

TOPEKA, Kas, June 11.—The Kansas industrial court law, fathered by former Governor Henry J. Allen, has functioned for three years, as a weapon against labor distrubances in Kansas.

Scores of labor leaders, including Alexander Howat, former district president of the united mine workers of America have been imprisoned and restrained thru exercise of the law which has been considered the most drastic labor legislation in years.

The law prohibits strikes and lockouts and arranges for fixing of wages in cases of disputes.

During the recent coal strike the law was used in an effort to break the strike in this district and fuel was supplied to the state thru control of the mines.

The most severe test of the measure came when William Allen White, Emporia publisher and credited with being one of the authors of the industrial court measure, sympathized with the striking shopmen last summer and fused to remove a placard in his office in defiance of the court and his personal friend, Governor Allen. The case was dismissed by the state.

The case one which today's decision was rendered was appealed from the industrial court after wages and working conditions had been set by the court on request of workers.

Governor Davis, elected on a platform opposing the court and other state officials refused to comment on the supreme court's action until the text of the decision is received here.

SUSPECT MAN OF A MURDER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 11.—New evidence which may result in a murder charge against one of the suspects was unearthed today by detectives investigating the killing of Helena Drachman, Danish sales girl.

Search of one of the suspect's rooms revealed handwriting identical with that of a letter threatening Chris Connell and Helena death if they did not stop going together and the anonymous note which told police where Miss Drachman's body lay.

Investigators today placed little credence in the theory that Miss Drachman's was stabbed to death by a jealous woman. All the women suspects have been released.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TO RETAIN CONTROL

May Hold Central Pacific Railway Under New Lease and Continued Stock Ownership, Three Judges Decide.

ST. PAUL, June 11.—The Southern Pacific railway will retain control of the Central Pacific railway under a new lease and continued stock ownership, three judges in the United States circuit court of appeals decided today.

The decision upholds the conditions set down by the interstate commerce commission.

The judges decided the interstate commerce commissions has the right to approve the acquistion and control.

Next Monday was set by the court for a hearing of counsel on the form of the decree.

When the form of decree is decided upon it will be entered as formal.

PLANNED TO DEFRAUD MANY

Three Officials of Cooperative League of America Arrested By Postal Inspectors.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 11. — A plan to defraud investors here of mortgages valued at $1,300,000 was frustrated with the arrest here today of three officials of the Cooperative League of America, postoffice inspectors announced

Those arrested were Charles E Sprcop, president of the concern John A. Clark, vice president and arry J Bovard secretary and treasurer. All were held charged with using the mails to defraud

The arrests followed an investigation order issued by Federal Judge Anderson in Indianapolis about three weeks ago after a receiver was appointed for the cooperative league and other organizations identified with it.

The three men arrested here will be taken to Indianapolis to face trial along with three others arrested by authorities there.

MINE WORKERS CONVENE

International Executive Committee Gathers at Indianapolis—To Report on Red Activities.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 11.—Members of the international executive board of the nUited Mine Workers of America gathered here today from all parts of North America for a conference.

One of the principal objects of the conference, which probably will continue for more than a week, will be a report of a committee appointed to investigate "red" activities in Nova Scotia.

The Nova Scotia district miners proposed to join the Internationale of Moscow but were prevented from doing so by the international union

Major internal difficulties of the union have been settled and quiet prevails in most of the districts, the board members reported.

They said there is considerable unemployment among miners despite the boom in industry There is little likelihood of a boom in the coal mining business they declared

Pawnee City—The first week of the vacation Bible school ended here with an enrollment of more than 150. All of the five Pawnee City churches are co-operating in this new venture and twenty-one teachers and helpers are donating their time and effort to make it a success Mrs E. D Hageman, wife of Rev E D Hageman, pastor of the Christian church here, is in charge.

WALL STREET FACES PROBE

FARM BLOC WISHES TO FORCE MOVE FOR INVESTIGATION.

Many Members of Farmers' Organization in Congress Believe "Street" Responsible For All Country's Ills.

By Lawrence Martin.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The farm bloc will try to force thru the coming congress a resolution for the most searching congressional investigation "Wall street" ever undertaken.

"Wall street" is the bloc's name for New York's whole financial machinery including the stock exchanges, brokerage houses and big financial institutions

Recent sensational failures of New York brokerage concerns and the government's unsuccessful suit against the New York sugar exchange in an effort to stop speculative activities which the justice department blamed for the sugar price increase, have rearoused the farm bloc's hostility toward Wall street which many of its members blame for the farmers' troubles Western and southern farm bloc members have been corresponding with a view to organizing the bloc to put thru in the early days of the coming session a sweeping investigating resolution At a general conference of farm bloc senators and house members to be held in Washington later this summer, definite plans for bringing about the inquiry will be made

The inquiry is to be directed to these points.

1—What relation do speculative activities in New York bear to the country's money supplies; that is, does speculation tie up money that ought to be available for credits for farmers and business men?

2—How does speculation affect prices?

3—Can congress pass laws that will stand the test of the courts, to limit speculation both as to commodities like sugar, coffee, and similar articles and as to stocks?

4—What percentage of Wall street's business is legitimate and necessary, and how much of it is purely speculative?

5—What are the relations and effects of Wall street's financial agencies and methods upon the affairs of the United States government?

These main questions will open a vast field of collateral inquiry so that, if the investigation is authorized as the bloc wants it, the entire financial structure of the country will be searched.

What the farm blocers expect to accomplish is this:

1—Revelation of the "secrets" of speculation; the causes of such failures as have recently occurred.

2—Disclosure of the responsibility for limitation of credit to farmers, for which farm blockers assert either the government or Wall street, or perhaps both were to blame.

3—Remedial legislation; in a word, the reformation by the west and the south in concert of the Wall street system, as the blocers call it.

Such an investigation will be stoutly resisted, chiefly on the ground that it will be of little value.

HENS MAKE BIG SHOWING

Exeter Biddies Averaged Twenty-seven Eggs Apiece During Month of May.

At the end of the seventh month of the second national egg laying contest under way at the Nebraska Agricultural college the ten single combed White Leghorns owned by Ohio Poultry farm, Cincinnati, O., led the fifty-seven entries with 1,144 eggs in the basket. The nine hens left in the pen from St. John's Poultry farm of Oronogo, Mo., are a close second with 1,141 eggs alid. All of the high ten pens left laid over 1,000 each. Six of these first ten pens have only nine birds each left.

For the month of May, the eight S. C. White Leghorn hens owned by J. H. Plettner, Exeter, Neb., led the contest with an average of 27 eggs each. The six hens of the same breed owned by Cackleberry Farm, College View, were second with 25.3 eggs each and the nine hens in the pen of St. John's Poultry farm of Oronogo, Mo., weer a close third with 25 eggs each. The nine S. C. Rhode Island Reds belonging to Paul Gurney of Inavale, Neb., were the only group of hens that were not S C White Leghorns ot break into the first ten pens in May production They were sixth with an average of 24 eggs each

The Barred Rock hen C 334 belonging to Mrs. H C Kleinsmith of Hoff, Ore., still holds the high individual honors with 173 eggs in her nest. She has been on the honor roll but once or twice but she still maintains her lead by her consistent production Of the twelve highest producing hens for the seven months three are Barred Rocks, two are White Orpingtons, one is a R. C Brown Leghorn and six are S C White Leghorns

The honor roll for May, or those hens which laid twenty-nine or more eggs is made up of nine S C White Leghorns, one S. C. Ancona, one White Rock, and one S. C. Rhode Island Red.

This contest is conducted by the Agricultural college and costs the owners of the hens only a small entry fee. The college takes the eggs to pay for the feed and care Pens are entered from all parts of the United States. The hens are cared for in flocks, divided according to breeds and types Trapnesting makes the recording possible.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS SMALL

Mayor Zehrung Recalls His Coming Forty-nine Years Ago This Monday Afternoon.

Forty-nine years ago Monday at 2.30 p. m., Mayor Zehrung came with his parents to Lincoln He was not mayor then In looking back to the day of his arrival, he said.

"Little did that green country boy of thirteen years suspect that he would have the wonderful honor of serving the city three times as mayor. I remember the first night. We stopped at the Commercial hotel, Eleventh and P streets. Eleventh street then, you know, was virtually the east end of the business section. Lincoln was a straggling town with no modern improvements. The population was around 6,000 or 7,000. Robert D. Silver was mayor and P. H. Cooper was marshall."

The mayor has reason to remember that first night in Lincoln. There came a bad storm and Salt creek ran wild.

"From just below Ninth street to the north, south and west—as far as the eye could reach, one vast sea of water. A boy was drowned. It was the night of Saturday, June 11th that the storm broke. The original George S. Harris died on Sunday, not however, because of the flood. The Metropolitan hotel was located at Eighth and O streets. The dining room was in the basement and was a pretty sight.

"In those days there was a big hill on what we now call city or government square The town was wide open. There was a big pond used in winter for skating on the south side of O street, between Eleventh and Twelfth. The disputed eighty had not been settled Part of the land under dispute was between R and O and Fourteenth and Seventeenth. A race track occupied a portion of the disputed land. You know in those days every one owned horses and every owner thought he had a fast horse The Burlington had not extended to Denver. I remember the first dining car and the first Pullman to come to Lincoln."

The mayor recalls moving to Blair with his parents in 1869 Prior to the move to Lincoln in 1874, the father established the Zehrung & Harley drug store at Eleventh and O streets.

THREE MEN ARE INDICTED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 11.—Edwin C. Kingsbury, Charles H Kreich and Isaac C Howard all of Fort Worth Tex., were indicted in federal court today on charges of misuse of the mails. The indictments charge attempts to pyramid a shoestring to the extent of $2,500,000 by selling stock in a fictitious company, authorities announced.

The indictments contain forty-eight counts

ONE FORMAL BALLOT TAKEN

State Normal Board Selects Dark Horse For Head of Peru Normal on First Formal Ballot.

State Superintendent Matzen participated in the state normal board meeting at Fremont aSturday which resulted in the election of W. R. Pate of Alliance to be president of the Peru state normal school. Several years ago the board elected W. D. Hayes of Alliance to this position. Mr. Hayes now lives in Lincoln. Mr. Pate receives $4,000 a year at Alliance. He will be paid $5,000 at Peru. He had intended to teach in the Chadron state normal summer school and then taken special work at Columbia. He will visit Peru within a week or two to inspect the institution. F. C. Prince, principal of the Alliance high school for the past five years, may be elected superintendent of the city schools in place of Mr. Pate. At the Fremont meeting only one informal baloit was taken That baloit showed Mr. Pate's election. The ballot was then declared the formal expression of the board. Miss Pyrtle and Dan Morris, members of the normal board were not present at the meeting. Notice of the special meeting was sent to members one day in advance, but all members had known for some time that a meeting was to be called Mr. Pate has been superintendent of the Alliance schools for thirteen years.

HAYWARD ATTACKS SMITH

Declares Name of Traitor Has Been Linked Up With History in the Past.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 11.—A bitter attack on the action of Gov. Al Smith in signing the repealer to the New York prohibition law was launched today by F. A. Hayward, executive secretary of the Federated Baptist churches of nIdiana.

"There have been men whom history linked up with treason and in this country we associate the name of Benedict Arnold with it," he said "Yet there are men who are acting against the enforcement of our basic law, the eighteenth amendment.

"It is unfortunate in an hour like this to hear some desire to fail back"

Hayward's utterance was regarded as particularly significant at this time coming on the eve of Smith's visit to Indiana which is generally understood to be sounding out the attitude of Indiana democrats toward his proposed candidacy for the presidency.

TWO WOMEN SUE U. P.

Mrs. George McGuire and Mrs. Neil Miller Ask $40.000 For Loss of Husband.

OMAHA, Neb., June 11.—Two suits for $40,000 each were filed in district court today against the Union Pacific railway by widows of two trainmen killed in the service

Mrs George W McGuire, whose husband was killed while coupling cars at Fremont, March 19 last, and Mrs Neil H. Miller, whose husband lost his life in an accident at Elkhorn, November 5, 1922, are the plaintiffs

HAYNES DISCLOSES DRY LAW TROUBLES

Report by States Shows That Most of Those Who Violate Prohibition Act Are of Foreign Birth.

WASHINGTON, June 11 — The enormous effort of the federal government to enforce prohibition in every state in the union since its inception January 16, 1920, was revealed today by Federal Commissioner Haynes, in a statement detailing reports of enforcement during his first two years as head of the government's prohibition department. Haynes celebrated his second anniversary as commissioner today.

Haynes asserted in his report that prohibition in the United States will ultimately be successfully enforced, but added that at present, adverse public opinion in some sections was retarding the work

His report by states showed that in most of them, those arrested for violation of the dry law are of foreign birth.

A summary of the operations by states follow:

Iowa—98 per cent of all cases reaching the courts result in convictions Only 10 per cent violators are aliens Arrests by federal dry agents, September 1, 1921 to April 30, 1923, 1,284, fines imposed, $58,780.

North Dakota—The state has taken an active part in enforcement as evidenced by 650 of 667 cases in the present fiscal year being handled in state courts Total federal arrests in past two years, 991. federal convictions, 293.

South Dakota—Conditions improved 30 per cent in past year Arrests increasing, 971 reported for first four months 1923 against 1,125 for entire year 1922.

CHIROPRACTORS TO MEET

Will Hold Convention Tuesday Following Examinations Held at the State House.

Sventy-eight chiropractors are taking the examination being conducted at the state house by the board of chiropractic examiners, under the rules and requirements set by the new chiropractic law The majority of the applicants are members of the Nebraska branch of the Universal Chiropractors association, which is to hold a convention at the Lincoln hotel on Tuesday following the close of the examinations

This convention will bring to Lincoln many of the older licensed chiropractors thruout the state who were influential in urging the passage of "280," the hard fought chiropractic bill, as well as several interesting chiropractic personages from outside the state. Among the latter are Dr. S. E Julander of Des Moines, secretary of the national board of chiropractic examiners. Another Iowa visitor is Dr. John H. Craven of Davenport.

Charles S Reese of Simeon, the father of the chiropractic bill, and J. C McGowan of Norfolk, who became its "stepfather" by his senate amendment, are expected to arrive in Lincoln Tuesday morning to be honor guests at the closing banquet to be held at the Grand hotel Tuesday evening. The Lincoln legislative delegation will also be guests of the association at this banquet

FIRE SWEEPS TRAIN SHED

Two Million Dollar Loss in Philadelphia

SEVERAL TRAINS ARE BURNED

Fire Twice Escapes From Control of Fighters.

Flames For Time Threatened to Destroy Big Pennsylvania Station—Blaze Spreads Across the Street.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11. — A $2,000,000 fire today reduced the Broad street station train shed of the Pennsylvania railroad to ruins.

Shortly before noon when the fire was believed to be under control a flare back burst forth with renewed fury, sweeping thru the baggage room under the train shed.

Firemen concentrated their efforts on the new outbreaks and after an hour it was again under control.

Thirty firemen have been carried from the burning structure injured or overcome by smoke.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11. — Fire early today destroyed the Broad street train shed of the Pennsylvania railway, driving scores of passengers from their berths in Pullman cars.

For a time while the flames were at their height, it appeared that the entire station, which is situated in the heart of the city, would burn.

Four electric and three steam trains were lost. Several firemen were injured and twenty or more were overcome by the smoke, as nearly every company in Philadelphia fought to keep the blaze from spreading.

Flames spread across Market street to the new Fox theater, under construction and to the Pennsylvania railroad offices building. Fast work by firemen saved these two structures.

The blaze swept thru the train sheds from Fifteenth street to a point west of Sixteenth, and from Market to Filbert streets.

Passengers on sleeping cars in the station were awakene dby smoke which poured through during the early stages of the fire. They fled to the streets.

Two trains arrived just after the fire was discovered. Passengers from a New York express train fought their way thru while those from a main line train were unable to penetrate the smoke and had to walk back to the west Philadelphia station over the tracks.

No way of estimating the exact damage to the building and rolling stock could be found this morning. The loss will run close to a million dollars, however, firemen and police said.

CHEST TO RAISE BUDGET

Executive Committee Holds First of Series of Meetings Monday at Chamber of Commerce.

The community chest executive committee met Monday at the chamber of commerce with cooperating committees from the civic clubs, and discussed plans for raising the remainder of its $100,000 budget. To date 6,895 persons have pledged $96,656.41 and have paid $45,129. The rest is to be paid in monthly, quarterly or semi-annual installments. June payments are now due, L. W. Horne said Monday, and the more promptly they are paid, the more the chest will profit. Twenty thousand dollars was invested in bonds due in a short time, and the rest is drawing interest in various banks.

The expense of the recent campaign was a little less than 4 per cent of the amount of the budget. There will be no more expense this year, as Secretary O. J. Fee has given office room for headquarters, where subscriptions may be received. The budget committee will meet monthly to go over the requisitions from the twelve organizations for which the money was raised.

The special committees from the civic clubs and the community chest will meet Saturday noon at the chamber of commerce to report progress and make plans for raising the remaining $3,343.59.

SMALL EFFECT UPON SCHOOLS

DECISION OF FEDERAL COURT MEANS VERY LITTLE CHANGE.

Few Public Schools Taught Foreign Languages in Grades and Church Schools Now Limited By Constitution.

The effect upon the schools of Nebraska of the federal supreme court decision holding that the legislature exceeded its constitutional rights when it said no school, private, public, denominational or parochial, should teach any foreign language to children in the first eight grades, will be varied, educators say. In the main, however, they say it will make little difference with the manner in which the schools are conducted.

The constitution of hte state requires that the common school branches in all schools shall be taught in English. This will make it impossible for the church schools that used a foreign language almost to the exclusion of English to go back to their old ways. It was these old ways that the Siman law first and then the Reed-Norval laws were intended to correct. The decision will permit them to teach a foreign language, but in the nature of things, with the requirement that the common school branches be taught in English, this will be a side issue instead of a main issue as it once was.

So far as the public schools are concerned it has not been a pedagogical practice to teach foreign languages until after children reached the high school or had gone beyond the eighth grades. This will be news to a great many persons who have been misled by the statement that the language law denied to teachers "the right to instruct thier pupils in foreign languages during thier plastic age."

As a pedagogical proposition it has not been deemed desirable in Nebraska at least to teach foreign languages to children in the first eight grades. Prior to the Siman law there was nothing to prevent this being donecktfioubraehcnsverutale s s s ssi being done, but it was not done generally in the public schools because it was not deemed advisable or desirable. This was the statement made Monday by John Speedie, deputy state superintendent, in answer to a question.

Mr. Speedie said that altho nothing prevented this being done in the public shools prior to 1913, foreign language teaching in the grades did not appear until after the legislature passed what is known as the Mockett law, which made it mandatory upon the school board, if a certain percentage of patrons so petitioned. As a resule German was taucht in a number of schools in Omaha, Lincoln and elsewhere.

Germans were the prime movers in Lincoln and they were the staunch defenders of the law whe nan effort was made to repeal it in 1917. During the war it was repealed without any dissenting voices. In some schools Bohemian was taught in the grades, but this was the extent of it.

DOUGHNUT FACTORY ROBBED

Former Employe Leaves Note Stating He Was "Sorry But Just Had to Do It."

OMAHA, June 11.—When the manager of Purity doughnut factory opened his store today he found the place had been robbed and a note from one of his employes which read: "I am sorry for this but I just had to do it as I needed the money. Don't look for me as I am leaving town. (Signed) George Rasmussen."

Sixty dollars in cash was missing.

A RETRIAL OF STOCKER SUIT

JURY WAS BEING SELECTED MONDAY IN DISTRICT COURT.

Last Trial Resulted in a Verdict Awarding Plaintiff $33,333.34 But Was Set Aside By Judge Shepherd.

A jury was being selected in district court Monday morning for a retrial of the $50,000 damage suit of Gussie Stocker against her mother-in-law Mrs. Harriett Stocker, in which the plaintiff alleged that the affections of her husband, Thomas R. P. Stocker, were alienated by the defendant.

In the last trial of the case recently the plaintiff was awarded damages in the sum of $33,333.34. District Judge Shepherd, before whom the case was tried, ordered a new trial after a decision that the verdict was excessive.

It is alleged by the plaintiff that after she married Thomas R. P. Stocker at Auburn some years ago her husband insisted that they live with his mother, the defendant, in Lincoln. They came to Lincoln to live, but according to the plaintiff's petition the elder Mrs. Stocker made life so uncomfortable for her that it was impossible for her to live any longer at the Stocker home. She asked her husband to open a separate home, it was alleged, but according to the pleadings, the elder Mrs Stocker told her son that if he left her home she would disinherit him, or commit suicide. This, it is alleged, caused the son to stay at his mother's home where it was said to be uncomfortable for his wife, and later caused her to leave him to go back to her own home in Auburn, this breaking up what might have otherwise been a happy home.

Mr. Stocker sued his wife for divorce, but the wife obtained a decree of separate maintainence. The case is at present pending in supreme court. Mrs. Stocker denied mistreating her daughter-in-law while she lived at her home. The husband testified during the trial that he believed his wife's relatives had influenced her to leave him and thus broke up the home.

WOULD CHANGE ZONE MAP

City Planners Favor Industrial Zone For Warehouse District in Southwest.

Preliminary report on a new industrial zone, designed to care for increasing trackage and warehouse facilities for Lincoln was made by F. T. Darrow before the city planning subdivision Monday at the chamber of commerce. Mr. Darrow will make another report in two weeks, presenting maps to illustrate his idea.

The plan calls for conversion of an area south of G street, now designated as a residence district, into a warehouse district to serve at least two of the railroads and perhaps later all of them. Mr. Darrow pointed out the opportunity of getting more trackage in this section, and told how other cities had developed such areas where warehouse companies handled the transfer and other business for all the railroads, effecting considerable economy of time, space and money. The sentiment of the subdivision favors getting behind such a plan and presenting it to the city council as an amendment to the zoning ordinance, not yet passed.

TWO GERMANS BOUND OVER

Face Trial in Connection With Recent Bombing of Residence of Attorney Ely.

State Sheriff Tom Carroll received word from Ainsworth Monday that Fred Henne, sr., and Fred O. Henne, jr., father and son, were bound over to the district court for trial in connection with the recent bombing of the residence of Attorney William Ely. Bond in each case was fixed at $15,000. Neither party was able to furnish it. The father is in jail at Ainsworth and the son at Springview. The district court session opens next week.

Deputy State Sheriff Broady is a material witness. He assisted in building a case against the two men. It is claimed that the Ainsworth attorney was about to foreclose on property in which Henne and his son held an equity. The foreclosure proceedings being in the interest of a bank. Officers claim to have a strong case. The warning note presumably left by the bombers is expected to play an important part.

AFFECTS THE WATER SUPPLY

Beatrice Plant Battling With Muddy Seepage and Consumers Seek Wells For a Drink.

BEATRICE, Neb., June 11.—Over one inch rain fell in this vicinity Sunday afternoon and evening. South of Beatrice reports indicate a heavier downfall, considerable damage being done to crops. The Blue river at this point remains about stationary, altho a rise of four inches was reported during the night the river still being five inches below Saturday's mark. The city water station is still battling with the muddy water seeping in from crevices and consumers are forced to draw on neighbors with wells, for their supply.

SLAPS SHORT BALLOT BOYS

GOVERNOR SEES IN IT A PLAN TO PERPETUATE CODE.

Asserts That He and Brother W. are in Accord and Stands Stands By His Former Interview.

Governor Bryan asserted upon his return home Monday that the short ballot conference recently held in Lincoln is behind a system to perpetuate the code law under another name and that he and his brother W. J. Bryan are in hearty accord on that subject. The governor differs from most advocates of the short ballot in that he contends the system contemplates the delegation by the governor of executive power to appointive officers.

The governor retracts nothing he said about the special interests and big business being behind the short ballot, but on the contrary reiterates what he said.

"Its reported action," said Governor Bryan, commenting upon the conference held in Lincoln, "is in harmony with my interview last week as to the intention of the short ballot to shorten the number of all kinds of officers elected by the people from legislatures up to congress. The idea of the short ballot is to reduce the number of officers elected by the people and then have employes appointed to take the places and transfer power to said employes. This plan gets the power of the hands of the people and enables certain classes who want favors in the way of administrative action to deal with employes one at a time, where pressure can be brought upon them to get results without the knowledge of the public or of the few officers elected by the people.

"The action of the recent conference in selecting one man chairman and authorizing him to appoint committees and authorizing the committees to decide what state officers shall be eliminated and empowering unknown committees to decide what form of government shall take the place of the present form is right in line with the plan of certain class of interests that want to deal thru committees in private and not let the public know until it is too late to prevent.

"The safety of the people is in numbers. If special interests are permitted to group their power and get hold of the entire government machinery we would have a monarchy instead of a republic.

"The speech of W. J. Bryan at the state constitutional convention three years ago will plainly show he was in favor of five elective state officers known as constitutional officers, being required to meet in a group and act publicly in deciding policies of the states. I talked over that matter with him just prior to his speech and his views and mine were in exact accord and his views in the convention on the short ballot are in exact accord with the plan which I submitted to the legislature last winter, which provided for five elective state officers to sit as a board named for convenience, an executive council to determine policies and the governor to carry out those policies as the constitution contemplates.

"The action of the conference in Lincoln is exactly the opposite to what W. J. Bryan advocated three years ago. Its action appears to contemplate centralization of all power in the governor and authorizes him to delegate that power to employes, and thus give corporations an opportunity to strong arm state employes. I do not believe the public will stand for any such plan and I believe such a plan would be detrimental.

"The short ballot gets the governor farther away from the people instead of bringing him closer. I believe the attempt to get the governor out of the hands of the people should be met with by direct legislation by the people under the referendum or initiative a power which they hold, and in this way people can get legislation they want by dicert vote and not have it passed upon by such a lobby as infested the legislature last winter."

TO RELEASE CAPTIVES.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Chinese bandits have accepted terms for release of all foreign prisoners, the state department was notified today by United States Minister Schurman at Pekin.

Schurman's message, dated June 10, said release of the Americans and other foreigners was expected today, tho the bandits asked three days in which to complete their enrollment in the Chinese army.

KANSAS LABOR LAW INVALID

WASHINGTON, June, 11.—The Kansas industrial court act, long a red flag between capital and labor and an independent test of a state's regulatory power over industries, was held unconstitutional today by the supreme court of the United States.

Broken Bow—The members of the business woman's club were hostesses at a most successful June party at the city hall. Huge baskets of iris, snowballs and bridal wreath were used for decorative purposes. Dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

RUSSIAN NOTE CONCILIATORY

DANGER OF BREAK WITH GREAT BRITAIN AVERTED.

Soviet Requests Parley Where Difficulties May Be Straightened Out—Accepts English Figures on Vessels.

LONDON, June 11.—Great Britain may suggest to Germany that the latter repudiate passive resistance in exchange for a French promise to "get down to brass tacks" on the subject of reasonable reparations.

The cabinet, called by Stanley Baldwin to the most important conference of the premier's regime, considered this proposal this evening, it was learned reliably.

In answer to the note of Premier Poincare, suggesting a joint allied demand to Germany to cease resistance to the French and Belgians will be sent to Paris tonight.

Political circles which know of the British plan think there is little hope of the French cooperating in this way Poincare wants the Germans ordered to quit passive resistance without any promise or provisions being attached to the command.

M'ADOO'S CANDIDACY TO BE ANNOUNCED

William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, soon will make formal announcement of his candidacy for the democratic nomination for president, according to his friends in Kansas City, who met and conferred with him there while he was enroute to Los Angeles. The formal announcement, it is said, will be made in order that his strength may not be dissipated by the whipping of his followers into line for other candidates.

MANY BREAKS IN RAIL LINES

FLOODS IN REPUBLICAN VALLEY CAUSE FRESH TROUBLES.

From Two to Four Inches of Rain Fell Saturday and Sunday in the Territory Southwest of Hastings.

Monday morning weather bureau reports showed more than an inch of rain in the forty-eight hours preceding from half a dozen Nebraska stations. As many more showed almost an inch. The weather bureau report places the heaviest rains in the vicinity of Holdrege and Hastings. The report from Red Cloud is missing, presumably because of wire trouble caused by the disastrous flood.

The Burlington reported four inches of rain between Red Cloud and Hastings Saturday and Sunday. From Red Cloud to Alma more than two inches of rain fell, in some places exceeding three inches.

Monday morning the Burlington had five washouts in its main line between Red Cloud and Alma and half a dozen washouts between Red Cloud and Hastings on the branch line. All valley line trains were detoured by way of Lincoln, Hastings and Holdrege for the west, and from Oxford east over the main line to Lincoln. Early reports did not attempt to state how soon the valley railroad could be reopened. Some of the washouts are considerable in extent. The heavy rain caused floods in Turkey creek, Center creek and Thompson creek, fairly large streams which empty into the Republican at Naponee, Franklin and Riverton, draining the country from the north.

Another Burlington washout was reported near Reynolds. This happened Sunday evening. Over three inches of rain fell in that vicinity Sunday. The damage to farmers in that vicinity is considerable.

The Rock Island reported some water trouble west of Phillipsburg, Kas., and trains delayed by floods in Oklahoma.

The weather bureau report showed the following precipitation in Nebraska: Broken Bow .88; Columbus .83; Culbertson .42; Fairmont 1.01; Grand Island .88; Hartington 1. Hastings 1.60; Holdrege 1.31; North Loup 1.21; North Platte .50; Oakdale .81; O'Neill .94; Valentine 1.38. Some rain fell at Ashland, Lincoln and Omaha, but the showers were very light. The rain extended as far west as Denver.

The Burlington weather report for the Nebraska district indicated heavy rains in all its territory Saturday and Sunday with the exception of the southeast corner of Nebraska where rains were light.

In the past month the farmers in the Republican valley from Red Cloud to McCook have sustained severe losses because of floods. This latest heavy rain will delay the replanting of many fields of corn which had been washed out weeks ago. Since the earliest flood there has been very little time when the farmers could get into their fields to work.

The rainfall at Lincoln for the first eleven days of June has amounted to 4.65 inches. It has been less at Lincoln than at most rain reporting stations. Here a trace of rain fell on June 2, 2.59 inches fell on June 4, .53 of an inch fell on June 5; 1.24 June 6, .16 June 9; .02 June 10; .01 up to 8 a. m. on June 11.

General Superintendent Lyman of the Burlington came in from Denver Saturday by way of Oxford, Red Cloud and Wymore. He said rain was continuous from the time he left Denver until he reached Wymore.

WYMORE, Neb., June 11.—A rain measuring one and one-half inches

FOUR STATES SUFFER FROM HIGH WATERS

Four Persons Drowned and Millions of Dollars In Property Lost.

Oklahoma, Colorado and Georgia Also Suffering.

WHEAT FIELDS ARE RUINED

Flood Waters Pass Crest—Thousands of Homeless at Winfield and Arkansas City, Kas., Cared For in Tents.

Four persons were drowned, thousands were made homeless and millions of dollars of property damage caused by flood waters which swept Kansas, Oklahoma and parts of Colorado and Georgia today.

Scores of Kansas towns were inundated and thousands of acres of wheat for harvest ruined by the high waters caused by days of torrential rains Virtually every stream and river in the state had overrun its banks.

Arkansas City and Winfield, Kas., worst stricken of the towns, reported losses of two million dollars respectively. Two unidentified bodies were taken from the flood stream at Arkansas City. Wesley Brown, Southwestern college student, was drowned at Winfield.

Latest reports indicated the flood waters had passed the crest. Thousands of homeless at Winfield and Arkansas City were being cared for temporarily in tents.

Oklahoma lowlands were under water as a result of flooded tributaries and large property losses reported in scattered sections. Lowland homes in Tulsa, Okla., were flooded and families forced to flee in boats to higher ground.

Floods which followed a cloudburst near Loveland, Col., caused considerable property damage. Richard Foote, sixteen, was drowned in the Redstone river when caught by a sudden onrush of water.

Bridges and highways between Loveland and Estes Park were washed away. Many families marooned in the low lands were rescued by men in row boats.

A cloudburst which struck Macon, Ga., flooded low land homes and adjacent farm lands causing huge property losses.

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—Flood waters which have caused widespread suffering and heavy property damage thruout Kansas and northern Oklahoma became more menacing late today.

A dyke holding back a wall of water near Wichita gave way this afternoon and the Big Arkansas river ran rampant over the farming district west and south of Wichita and further inundated sections of the city. An area of ten square miles in Wichita and adjoining sections was under water.

Martial law was declared this afternoon at Arkansas City and Winfield, the two towns hardest hit by the floods. A general relief committee took charge of the situation. A campaign for a $500,000 relief fund was inaugurated immediately.

A train with 200 passengers aboard, marooned near Winfield, was pulled to safety by a relief train.

Kansas was flood stricken today, with practically every river and small stream in the state running over its banks.

Thousands of persons were made homeless and millions of dollars in property damage caused by the flood waters which swept over a wide area inundating cities and farm lands.

Arkansas City reported the worst flood there in history. Two persons were believed drowned. Mayor McIntosh, in appealing for outside aid, estimated the property loss would be more than two million dollars.

Hundreds of residents were reported homeless. Several hundred who sought refuge in the school houses were marooned as the flood waters rose, inundating the lower floors.

Winfield, one of the towns hardest hit by the flood waters, reported one person drowned and several unaccounted for. Wesley Brown, Southwestern college student, was swept away by the raging torrents while attempting to wade across a business street.

Property loss in the section around Winfield was estimated at a million dollars. Many homes were swept away and principal streets were running rivers, advices here stated.

Other Kansas towns which reported heavy losses were Emporia, Wichita, Topeka, Salina, Burlington, Lawrence, Halstead, Eldorado, Abilene, Fredonia, Augusta and Ottawa.

Reports reaching here from northern and western Oklahoma towns reported the flood waters there had caused great damage. Tulsa and Ponca City, Ok., reported the worst floods in history.

GREAT WHEAT PORT.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Grain shipments from Vancouver this season will amount to 20,000,000 bushels as against 7,500,000 bushels last year and 500,000 bushels in 1920, according to official estimates. Elevator accommodations will be increased from the present capacity of 1,250,000 bushels to 4,250,000 bushels by the time the 1923 crops is ready for movement.

CONSIDER REPRISALS.

LONDON, June 11.—The British government will consider whether it is necessary, in defense of British interests, to resort to measures to counterac the injuries done British ships by enforcement of the American liquor regulations, Premier Baldwin told the house of commons today.

Ships now in British ports, soon to sail for America, are being equipped with liquor in keeping with the provisions established by the United States The premier, in his statement to commons, however declared that the government was carefully watching the effect of the American regulations.

CEMENT WALK CAMPAIGN ON

SIXTY RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AT COUNCIL MEETING.

Street Department Head Starts a Clean-Up of Old Walks and a Program of New Walk Construction.

Sixty resolutions were introduced by Commissioner Cowgill at Monday's council meeting. Each resolution has something definite in view. These sixty legislative bits are directed at sixty property owners whose sidewalks are down at the heel or at those who have neglected to build any sort of walks. Building and Sidewalk Inspector Peck has his work cut out for him in serving the sixty notices.

This is a world's record insofar as records concern the city of Lincoln. Never in local history was there a number of like resolutions in near app[illegible] commissioner proposes [illegible] sidewalk cleanup on Ninth street from the Missouri Pacific tracks to P street. This takes in practically everything but a strip of good walk 100 feet long. New and good walks are ordered from the state university to the business section wherever needed. Another big cleanup is proposed for both sides of Thirty-third street, A to D streets. Walks must be constructed on the north side of A street from Thirty-third street to the boulevard.

The commissioner condemns the walk in front of the labor temple, that along the building occupied by the university school of music and the one fronting St. Luke's church.

Work of wrecking the partially demolished Victoria hotel building was started Monday morning. The city building inspector ordered the fencing of a front space which reaches eight feet beyond the curb. Mayor Zehrung introduced the annual Fourth of July resolution. This permits sale of firecrackers, not to exceed two inches in length, and not containing dynamite. Roman candles, sky rockets, pin wheels, toy torpedoes, baloons, colored fire and non-explosive novelties. Sale to be confined to the day of celebration and the two preceding days. No deliveries before the night of July 3rd.

"Sale, possession and shooting of crackers containing dynamite within the city limits is just as much against the law as racing down O street at fifty miles an hour," said the mayor. "The difference between powder and dynamite is so pronounced that no one should confuse them. If, with the effort we are going to make, we cannot stop violations, then it simply can't be done. We intend to put on extra policemen with instructions to arrest."

The state university board of regents has filed request with the council for vacation of that portion of U street lying between Tenth and Twelfth streets and of Eleventh street, between U and V streets.

The mayor, in a message to the council, nominated Emily J. Moore, J. E. Miller and W. R. Mellor to succeed themselves as members of the city hospital board. Their terms to expire February 28, 1929.

Commissioner Wright recommended that the application of the Standard Oil company to erect and maintain a gas filling station at the northwest corner of Seventeenth and Q streets be granted. Two petitions of protest were submitted. The public safety head also recommended that the Cornell Oil company be allowed to construct and operate a filling station at the northeast corner of Twelfth and P streets.

AL SMITH NOT A CANDIDATE

ALSO INSISTS HE DOES NOT EXPECT TO BE.

New York Governor, Who Signed Dry Repealer, Declares He Finds Country at Large Holding to Dry Sentiment.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Gov. Al Smith, New York, declared upon arrival here today that he is not a candidate for president of the United States and does not expect to be one.

Smith declared his western trip, during which he will meet Tom Taggart, Indiana democratic chieftain, in French Lick, is merely a vacation.

"I do not want any one to interpret this trip as a political move," he asserted.

Smith was met here by a party of democratic leaders

Commenting on the prohibition issue raised by his New York dry law repealer, Smith declared that he finds the country at large holding to a dry sentiment.

"It is my observation that the country is pretty generally holding to the dry sentiment, but there seems to be many objections both in the middlewest and in the eastern cities against specifications of the Volstead law," Smith said.

"Whether this will develop into anything of great political significance, I cannot say."

Commenting on the boom for him to become a presidential candidate on a "moist" platform Smith said:

"As for myself, I am not a candidate and do not expect to be one. I have a mighty good job as governor of New York state and when I am thru with that I think I will be entitled to a rest."

Plans for a dinner here tomorrow at which Smith was to have been the guest of prominent democratic politicians we reabandoned today and the governor will leave tonight for French Lick.

FOREIGNERS EVEN AT HOME

French Girls Deserted During War By American Husbands, Are in One Pretty Plight.

PARIS, (By Mail).—Several hundred "French girls, who married Americans during the war or immediately afterward, thereby acquiring American citizenship, have applied to the authorities here for reinstatement as French citizens, owing to the fact that their husbands have abandoned them. But the French laws prevent the granting of their request, because they are not divorced. As they are not French citizens, they cannot apply for divorce here. Many of them resided in America in states where mere abandonment does not constitute a valid ground for the breaking of the marriage bond.

The problem was brought to the attention of the Minister of Justice by M. Boissard, a member of the chamber of deputies and an international law expert. He emphasized the hardship imposed on these women who find themselves prevented from making another attempt to find marital happiness. M. Boissard asked the Minister of Justice if something could not be done for them. Minister Colrat replied that his hands are tied by the laws of the country. Unless they are modified the women must continue to be regarded as foreigners.

NEIGHBOR ROW IN COURT

Defendant Pointed Out Destination in Harsh Words, Says Complainant—Case Dismissed.

I. Baker, 2736 Apple, appeared in police court Monday morning charged with disturbing the peace by using profane language. Complaint had been filed against him by Mrs. Martha Peters., 1624 P, who appeared in court and said that Mr. Baker in unbecoming language had told her to go to the heated abode of the wicked. The defendant admitted the words but said that the rumpus had begun whne Mr. and Mrs. Peters treated him discourteously when he went to their home in search of an acquaintance. Judge Chappell dismissed the case, which he believes to be the outgrowth of personal differences.

YOUTH CANNOT PILOT CAR

Forbidden to Drive For 30 Days Because He Speeded.

C. E. Adams, whose home is at Bethany, is forbidden to drive a car for thirty days. He appeared before Police Judge Chappell, Monday morning on a charge of speeding. The officer says that he was going thirty-one miles an hour. The case was continued for thirty days and the outcome will depend upon whether the lad abides by the court order.

L. C. Brown, 415 North Twenty-eighth, was fined $10 and costs when he was found guilty of a charge of speeding. He pleaded innocence and was given a trial. Officer Towle testified that Mr. Brown was going thirty-one miles an hour when arrested. Brown's defense was that the lights of his car, which were not functioning properly, would be burned out if he went over twenty per. He said that this had happened early in the evening and he had to put in new lights.

Mrs. Anna B Ames was awarded a decree of seperate maintainance Monday forenoon from Frank A. Ames by District Judge Morning. According to evidence introduced Mr. Ames was guilty of extreme cruelty. It is alleged that he has told his wife he was tired of married life and wanted to be free again, and that he has struck her. The court retains jurisdiction for two years until the family's debts have been paid. The separation occurred August 2, 1922 Mr. and Mrs. Ames were married in Lincoln November 10, 1911 The plaintiff had asked for a divorce

CHILD DROWNS IN TANK.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., June 11—The two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs Oscar Olson residing in Roton Valley, west of Broken Bow was found in a large tank of water after being missed by her little playfellows. Life was extinct when the physician arrived.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: Do you think a man is indebted to his family, to the extent that he must send his father and mother money every month and lay nothing aside for his children's education or for a home of his own?

My husband and I are in that position. His parents live in the country and his salary here looks big to them, so that they do not see how it is that it stints us to give to them. They are not totally dependent on us yet, but I fear they will be in a few years.

I don't want to be selfish about it, but there are other children, most of them unmarried who do not give nearly as much to their parents' support as we do. Many times I have considered putting what little money I save (and it is my saving, too, by the way, which makes it possible for us to help the old folks) into some investment where it would be so tied up we couldn't get at it. It worries me to look ahead into a future, where there is a constant drain on our purse for my inlaws. Nothing saved for our children's future, or our own. We are comparatively young yet, but it will not be forever.

Besides that, his parents are not saving. They have luxuries which I deny my family and are constantly grasping for more. It seems to me I have sacrificed so much, since I made before I was married, almost as much as my husband is earning now. My parents are in good circumstances.

I would like a disinterested view of the matter.—Economizer.

A. If your parents were the ones in need, how would you feel about it? Wouldn't you think your husband somewhat unfeeling if he grudged them a little help now and then, even at the cost of some pleasure to yourselves? It is a wonderful thing to have a reserve fund, for education of your children and for a home, but your first duty, I believe, is to the older people.

The probability is that they denied themselves for years while their children were young and feel that if they are ever to have a little comfort out of life, it must be now. What if they are somewhat careless about the money? Their children should feel it a privilege to help them.

But your husband should not bear all of the burden. He should reach an understanding with his brothers and sisters whereby each one would contribute so much each month to their parents. In this way, a small amount from each one should suffice.

I would do it cheerfully and willingly. It will help your husband who cannot help being made unhappy by your present attitude.

Dear Mary Gordon: I wonder if I am alone in this belief or if there are other girls that feel the same way.

I'm tired of dancing, smoking, drinking, petting and pretending to be merry. I often wish I could go back and be the good little girl I was three years ago. Sometimes I wish I had never gone with a boy for they coaxed me to smoke, drink and swear and leave my God alone. Are there no nice, clean men in the world or do I just not know any?

I wish I still had the God of my childhood. The God whom I trusted and loved. But I can't go back. I've just got to stumble blindly on. hoping that my life may end well. I sometimes see life as a sea. I see myself drifting away to where the waves grow higher, people are standing around but no one reaches out a helping hand. I can't go back for I haven't the strength to battle with the waves alone. Some day, perhaps, I will find a friend among the great throng, who watch me drift away, that will come to my rescue and carry me back to where the waters are quiet and the waves are small. Until then—the Lord of Hosts alone knows what may happen.—G. D. P.

A. The thing for you to do is to learn to swim and stop drifting Probably it will be hard, for undoubtedly it will be making your way against the current, which you are now allowing to carry you. It will be difficult—will be reversing the direction in which you are going. But it will be worth while.

Don't wait for someone else to rescue you, for that someone may never come. But when you make a few determined strokes for yourself and onlookers realize you want to change your course, there will be plenty of helping hands. You will find then, too, that there are hosts of good men and women, many of whom have probably faced the same struggle, and been victors, as you will be.

Dear Mary Gordon: Have been reading your column of late and find some discussions very interesting.

I was greatly moved by the letter from "A Home Loving Man." It seems to me there is only one hope for his wife—conversion to religion. If the husband is not a Christian—I believe he is—that is his first problem, then try to win his wife. Down deep in her heart she knows she is doing wrong but only love, sympathy and kindness will touch her heart. Have the minister talk with her and some of your friends as well as yourself. When she sees others are interested in her because they love her she will begin to think.

Remember it will take time and patience and all the while pray, pray, pray! I am not a religious fanatic but I do believe she will live a much happier life following her husband's idea of it.

As for the married woman so happy without children I am sorry for her. Poor soul, she does not want to be "tied down" with children that she may spend her time away from home doing what her heart is yearning for—helping others. How blind she is! How much happier she could be at home caring for her own children and have much greater a reward in a tiny bear hug or a baby kiss than a stranger's thank you

A mother doesn't feel "tied down" and finds an evening more entertaining telling bedtime stories than attending a dance or show. But I suppose she pities me.—A Mother of Five.

P. S.—Let the dear little flappers enjoy themselves but there is no excuse for their mothers and grandmothers trying to outdo them

en-chow-ogirrornB ●ollhgrokga h f f

A Prayer accomplishes a great deal, but not everything. One must employ human means too, I believe, to bring about the desired result.

It the woman's conscience could be awakened, all would be well. The first thing is to separate her from undesirable friends.

Good Manners.

Should a guest in town, accompanying her hostess on a social call, leave her card?

If the person called on is not at home, no. Also no, it the guest is in town for so short a time that her call cannot be returned.

But if the callers find the hostess at home and the guest expects to remain in the neighborhood a fortnight or more, she should leave her card, or may pencil her name on the card of her resident companion.

FOR THE GRAVES OVERSEAS

NEBRASKA LEGION AUXILIARY CONTRIBUTES $500.

Income From $200,000 to Decorate Last Resting Place of American Soldier Dead.

Over $500 has already been sent by Nebraska Legion Auxiliaries to National Headquarters of the American Legion, reports Mrs. H. R. Ball of Lincoln, department secretary, every cent of which is to go into an endowment fund of $200,000 being raised by the legion the income from which shall be used in perpetuity to decorate the graves of those comrades who lie in foreign soil. FASHION NOTES.

This summer one buys several inexpensive hats to match the different gowns with which they are worn in preference to one or two expensive ones.

Tiny round edged handkerchiefs of colored voile edged in lace dyed the exact shade of the handkerchief may be purchased in the shops. They are lovely with the cotton gown.

A stunning semi-sport jacquette worn at a smart Long Island restaurant was made of brocaded cloth of silver with a design of soft, pastel colors. This glistened in the sunlight like a coat of armor and was worn with a pleated skirt of gray crepe de chene. A draped turban of gray chiffon carried out the silver tones of the jacquette.

Many of the young women about town are wearing little hats made of taupe, gray or black tulle. The soft crown has but two thicknesses of tulle, thus permitting the hair to show thru it. Small folds of net drape about an upstanding band which fits snugly to the head. There is no trimming whatever on these hats, but they are bound to be flattering to any face.

Plans for the formation of a chain of Erlanger and Shubert theaters into a new circuit to be devoted exlusively to motion picture spectacles at theater prices were announced.

WHIPPING AN ISSUE IN FLORIDA RUMPUS

Candidates For Office Lining Up For Or Against Discontinuance of Corporal Punishment By Special Enactment.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 11.—Abolition of the convict lease system and discontinuance of corporal punishment by legislative enactment will not end discussion of these two issues in Florida.

The lease and the lash will be an issue in the forthcoming political campaign in Florida. One prospective candidate for governor vigorously opposed the lash. Another prospective candidate was just as vigorous in his advocacy of continuation of corporal punishment. The issue will apply all down the line of state offices, it is expected.

The rumbles from the people for abolition of the lease system have been heard for years They started twenty years ago, when F. O. Miller, now a member of the house from Duval county, headed a movement to abolish the lease system. It met with absolutely no success at first, but every succeeding legislature felt the pressure growing on one side from the people for abolition, and increasing on the other for a continuation of it, from the turpentine interests, who were the largest users of convict labor.

The people won a partial victory in 1921, when the legislature passed a new law, forbidding leasing of state prisoners.

The leasing of county prisoners continued until the people of Florida, in an insistent call for vengeance for the death of Martin Talbert, swept it out of existence.

The death of Martin Talbert, a North Dakota boy, wandering in Florida, precipitated—more than a year after he died—one of the warmest legislative fights the state has experienced in years

Out of that grew:

The abolition of the lease system.

The abolition of corporal punishment.

Indictment by a federal grand jury of T. W. Higginbotham, "whipping boss," William Fisher, camp superintendent of the Putnam Lumber company and Sheriff J. R. Jones of Leon county, on peonage charges.

Removal by the senate of Jones as sheriff of Leon county.

Removal by the senate of Benjamin F. Willis, as county judge of Leon county.

Recommendation for the dismissal of J. B. Thomas as prison inspector.

Recommendation for revocation of the certificate of practice of Dr. T. Capers Jones, physician for the Putnam Lumber company.

Testimony that State Senator T. J. Knabb operated a human slaughter pen" at his convict camps in Baker county.

These are the concrete things accomplished as a result of an investigation by the Florida legislature of charges preferred by the legislature of North Dakota against the Putnam Lumber company in connection with the death of Talbert in the Clara camp of that company February, 1922.

North Dakota's legislature, in a memorial to the Florida assembly, charged that a whipping boss of the Putnam company had beaten Tabert to death.

Many legislators of Florida were indignant. They felt affronted And, besides, they pointed out, such an investigation was not within the scope of legislative duty, but belonged to the executive branch of the government.

They finally decided to investigate anyhow, as a matter of courtesy to a sister state.

Two members of the senate and three members of the house were named a joint committee to conduct the investigation.

Within three days after they started the state was startled by revelations of shocking brutality that, witnesses said, had been practiced in the camps operated by the Putnam Lumber company.

The legislature itself was hard to convince. It required many witnesses to buttress the testimony of the first ones, who had charged that men were forced to work twelve hours a day—from sunup to sundown—most of the time in water waist deep, with inadequate food, and the fear of a three and a half foot leathern lash hanging over them if they stopped their feverish activity for one moment, except when the guard commanded.

The committee was told of the whipping of Tabert, who was described as ill with malaria, foot-sore, with shoes too small for his swollen feet, and forced to work with the remainder of the convicts.

Twice Tabert was whipped. The second time was fatal, witnesses said, and they described with horrible exatitude the fury of the whipping boss as he applied the lash until his victim could scream no more. T. W. Higginbotham was charged with having whipped Tabert to death. He will also face peonage charges preferred by the United States government in connection with the working of an old negro, Ned Thompson, at the Clara camp. With him in these charges will appear ex-sheriff J. R. Jones of Leon county, and William Fisher, superintendent of the convict camp at Clara.

The federal authorities charge Jones with having sent the negro to the camp without trial, and Higginbotham and Fisher with having made him work, notwithstanding he had not been sentenced to the camp.

Higginbotham's attorney in the murder trial is L. E. Wade, representative in the legislature from Clay county.

BRITISH MAY GIVE ADVICE TO BERLIN

May Urge Germans to Discontinue Passive Resistance if French Will Confer on Reasonable Reparations.

LONDON, June 11—Danger of a break between Russia and Great Britain has been definitely averted by the conciliatory tone of a note from the government delivered to the foreign office here today it was learned on reliable authority this evening.

The Russian not requests a conference at which difficulties that have arisen between the two countries and which led to delivery of a sharp British ultimatum may be straightened out.

Russia accepts Britain's figures regarding compensation for seizure of fishing vessels and agrees to withdraw soviet agents wherever it is proved they have indulged in any anti-British propaganda.

JOSEPH GOELLER IS DEAD

Connected With Early History of Jefferson County.

FAIRBURY, Neb., June 11. — Eli Goeller, of this city, just received a letter telling of the death on June 1 of his oldest brother, Joseph Goeller, at his home in Spokane, Wash.

The deceased came to Rose Creek City in this county in 1865, and altho but a boy at that time, went into the general merchandise business there and afterwards run a drug store at that place until the town by reason of railroads and other towns being located became nothing but a memory; he was a successful business man, congenial, friendly neighbor and loyal friend, as were most of the people who settled in this almost wilderness at that time For a long time he was a resident of Fairbury precinct, and was in Fairbury much of his time and always ready to go over with the old settler the early days so filled with adventure and hardship.

He was one of the best known citizens of Jefferson county. About twenty years ago he sold his property in Fairbury and vicinity and moved to Spokane where he has since lived. His children, William Goeller, Myrtle Goeller and Ethel Newell, having moved there before he went.

He is survived by a brother, Jonas Goeller, of Arabi, Cal; John Goeller of Los Angeles, Cal, and Eli Goeller of Fairbury, Neb, and a sister, Mary Dopp of Pasadena, Cal. One sister, Samantha Newell, died jus. one month before his death

Mr Goeller was born November 21, 1850, and was seventy-three years old.

Mrs. Wolcan Offers Convincing Evidence

Declares Tanlac Ended 5 Years Of Suffering From Stomach Trouble, Palpitations, Nervousness And Insomnia—Health Splendid Now.

"The good health I am enjoying today is all due to this wonderful medicine called Tanlac, "is the positive statement made recently by Mrs. Mary Wolcan, 805 S. 29th St., Omaha, Neb.

"I had been troubled with loss of appetite and serious stomach trouble for five years, and just suffered torture with indigestion pains and heart palpitation. I was so nervous my hands shook like one with the palsy and my sleep was restless and broken. The condition of my liver made me feel sluggish and dizzy, my head ached dreadfully, and the pains in my back and arms were something awful.

"Well, all my troubles have left me since taking the Tanlac treatment, and I eat fine, sleep fine and feel fine in every way. Search the world over and you couldn't find such a grand good medicine as Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.—Advertisement.

$25,000,000
Austrian Government Guaranteed Loan

1923-1943

Seven Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Dated June 1, 1923 Interest payable June 1 and December 1 Due June 1, 1943

As All of the Above Bonds Have Been Sold, This Advertisement Appears Only as a Matter of Record.

Subject to redemption at par as a whole on any interest date after June 1, 1934, and in part through the Sinking Fund in any year. Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100. Principal and interest payable in New York at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, without deduction for any Austrian taxes, present or future.

Guaranteed severally as to principal, interest and redemption payments, in the proportion stated below, by the Governments of Great Britain, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and Holland.

Before each issue forming part of the Loan is made, every guarantor State will deposit with the National Bank of Switzerland in the name of the Trustees its own bonds of like tenor and currency to cover the amount of its guaranty in respect of such issue. Thus, dollar bonds of the several States by which the service of this issue is guaranteed will be held by the National Bank of Switzerland in the name of the Trustees.

These Bonds are part of an International Loan to be issued in Great Britain, France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Sweden, Austria and the United States of America in bonds of various denominations and in various currencies for amounts sufficient to yield in the aggregate an effective sum equivalent to 630,000,000 Austrian Gold Crowns, or about $126,000,000.

The Bonds are to be secured by a first charge on the gross receipts of the Austrian customs and tobacco monopoly, which, for the first five months of 1923, have been at the rate of 150,000,000 Austrian Gold Crowns (about $30,000,000) per annum, whereas interest charges and sinking fund sufficient to amortize the Loan by maturity will not exceed 67,000,000 Austrian Gold Crowns (about $13,600,000) per annum.

The Austrian Government covenants to pay during the life of the Loan a fixed annual sum which, after deducting the annual interest on the Bonds at the time outstanding, is to be sufficient to redeem the entire Loan in annual installments by maturity. The quota available for amortization of the American issue, increasing from about $600,000 in the first year to about $2,200,000 in the last year, will be used in the redemption of Bonds of the American issue by lot at 100% and accrued interest, or, if the Austrian Government should so elect, in the purchase of Bonds in the market, if obtainable at less than 100% and accrued interest.

GUARANTIES

Of the total authorized Loan, bonds to the amount required to yield an effective sum equivalent to not more than 585,000,000 Austrian Gold Crowns (of which the present issue of guaranteed dollar bonds forms part) are guaranteed as to principal, interest and redemption payments by the undermentioned States to the extent in each case of the proportion stated:

Great Britain	to the extent of 24½%	Belgium	to the extent of 2%
France	" " " 24½%	Sweden	" " " 2%
Czecho-Slovakia	" " " 24½%	Denmark	" " " 1%
Italy	" " " 20½%	Holland	" " " 1%
Total	100%

In addition to the sum of 585,000,000 Austrian Gold Crowns thus obtained, a further amount of upwards of 45,000,000 Austrian Gold Crowns will be made available through advances to be made by the Swiss and Spanish Governments as part of the authorized total of this Loan. These amounts together are now estimated to be sufficient for the requirements of the Austrian Government. The advances above described will rank equally on the pledged revenues, but will not have the government guaranties.

WE OFFER THE ABOVE BONDS, SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE, AT 90% AND ACCRUED INTEREST, TO YIELD OVER 8 PER CENT.

All orders will be received subject to the issue and delivery to us of the Bonds as planned, and to the approval by our counsel of their form and execution. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any event, to award a smaller amount than applied for.

Amounts due on allotments will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York funds to their order, on or about June 26, 1923. Trust Receipts will be delivered pending the preparation of the definitive Bonds.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York stock exchange

WILSON STAND IS A QUESTION

DEMOCRATS WONDER IF HE WILL ACCEPT SMITH.

Relations Never Friendly—Governor's Statement on Definition of Intoxicating Beverage Constitutes Feeler.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 11—As prospects of the wet and dry issue becoming a real fighting point within the democratic party are constantly increasing, the question of whether the Woodrow Wilson faction within the party may be found aligned with Governor Smith of New York was being discussed by the governor's friends here today.

While the relations between the former president and Governor Smith have never been exactly on a friendly basis, still, it is pointed out that development of political issues sometimes results in unexpected alliances. Smith today is certainly a factor to be reckoned with in the national councils of the party. In his reply to Bryan the governor intimates his belief that one phase of prohibition, at least will be a factor in the next national campaign.

"It is quite possible," he says, "that a sane and sensible definition of what constitutes an intoxicating beverage might be a prominent issue."

At the same time Smith denied that he was a candidate for any office.

The governor will arrive in Chicago today enroute to French Lick, Ind., for a two weeks vacation at Tom Taggart's hotel there. Governor Smith denies that there is any political significance in his visit to Indiana. "Chief" Murphy, of Tammany hall, is not with the governor, who is accompanied only by his secretary and two republican friends.

PLANS FOR DEMONSTRATION

Poultry Culling Exhibition to Be Held at Home of Floyd Campbell Near Rokeby.

Plans have been made for a poultry culling demonstration to be held at the home of Floyd Campbell, one-half mile west of Rokeby, June 13, at 9 a. m., according to County Agent Purbaugh. Estimating that the 800,000 hens in Lancaster county will each produce as many eggs as the average Nebraska hen, which according to the best authority is 70 eggs each, they would yield a total income of close to a million dollars from the eggs alone and probably half that amount from the sale of live poultry.

According to Mr Purbaugh reports are coming in from the different parts of the county which indicate that the damage being done to wheat by the Hessian fly is becoming more serious each day. Farmers are reported to be plowing up some of the badly infested fields and sowing to other crops. They have found that if the frost comes late in the fall that it is hard to combat the fly. About the only procedure is to plan for next year's control. The method usually followed is to plow the wheat stubble early and keep down all volunteer wheat until after the frost and then sow the next year.

Mr. Purbaugh said that those who wished to keep up the pedigrees of wheat or any other pure seed that they may have, may send in their applications for inspection to the oCunty Agent's office at once. The inspection must be made before the grain is cut.

BANK LODGES AN APPEAL

Complains That Lancaster County Jury Wrong in Refusing Judgment on a Note.

The Walton State bank has appealed to the supreme court from the verdict of a Lancaster county district court jury that gave D. M. Deane a judgment for a dollar when it was suing him for $1,500. Deane admitted giving a note for that amount, but said that Cashier Murphy of the bank had entered into a conspiracy to defarud him. He said that Lloyd Smith wanted to sell him a half interest in a garage at 212 South Nineteenth street, and referred him to Murphy, who said that it was making $400 to $500 a month, owed nothing and was a fine proposition.

Deane said Murphy told him that the bank would loan him $1,500 on his note, and he secured the signature of H. C. Swallow as surety. He said that as a matter of fact Smith owed the bank that amount, and this was used as a means of getting its money on a claim otherwise worth little. He said he discovered the garage owed $2,000 and was not making any money. He sued for $5,000 damages because of the deal, but got a judgment for a dollar only. He was released from obligation on the note, and it is because of this judgment that the bank appeals.

LEGION WILL GIVE PRIZES

Many Contests and Stunts Planned For Round-up at Beach Next Week.

The American Legion will be the advance guard and many Lincoln people will follol when the veterans' organization captures Capital beach for two days, June 20 and 21. The committee chairmen met at the club rooms Sunday and from there went to the Beach to make the znal decisions on the location of the attractions.

Jack Payne, world's champion high diver, will make his first appearance of the year when he will plunge 110 feet into a shallow tank of water, the top of which is a burning surface of gasoline.

Three hundred dollars' worth of prizes will be given to the different winners of the events and most unusual competitions. The women swimmers' beauty contest is already attracting considerable attention. It is expected by the committee to be as popular as the flappers' contest last year when it brought 1,500 contestants.

The Legion's prize winning band is scheduled for both days and will, together with the "40 and 8" bugle and drum corps, give a varied program of musical number s

Bathing, boating, picnics and the other usual beach attractions will all be accessible for the Legion's friends.

LEGION POST TO ENTERTAIN

Men Invite Their Employers to Program Monday Night at the Club Rooms.

L. E. Gunderson of the University of Nebraska and a prominent American Legion man, will speak at the Legion and business men's meeting Monday night when al lthe ex-service men will bring their employers or someone else's employer to the entertainment at Sixteenth and O streets.

H. J. Horsefield of the U. S. Veterans bureau is also scheduled for a speech on the relation of the business men to the disabled veterans. Other features of the program are vocal numbers and readings. The American Legion auxiliary will serve refreshments.

WILL BE RECORD SESSION

Registration For University Summer School is Still Incomplete But Exceeds Last Year's.

Registration for the University of Nebraska summer school already exceeds that of the first session of last year when the total enrollment was 2,135. Very few Omaha teachers are as yet registered as the schools there do not close until the end of the preesnt week. Omaha teachers, unlike those from smaller cities of the state, usually come for some definite work for which they prefer to arrange when on the campus.

Refuses to Accept Well.

AUBURN, Neb., June 11.—The city council made its estimate of the coming year's expenses at its last meeting. Last year the estimate was $87,720 and this year it jumped to $97,000. The salary bill passes the $10,000 mark this time. The council refused to accept the new Kelly well recently put down. It appears that after the well was put down and the test pump was put to work the workmen in removing the pump let it slip and fall to the bottom which broke loose the cement forms. This necessitated the pulling of the cement forms and consequently allowed the gravel and sand to fill in and when the best pumping was tried again the well dropped from a production of 165 gallons per minute to 99. A new pump was ordered for the well at an expense of $555 with an additional expense of $218 for a transformer. This pump will have a capacity of 200 gallons per minute, provided the well will give up that amount of water

Capitol School Pupils Costumed for Class Play.

—Macdonald Photo

Eight-A pupils of Capitol school are shown costumed for their class play. The play was developed from class room work in English and the costumes were designed to fit the characters represented. Forty-four children took part in the play, impersonating well known characters from books the reading class has studied. Rip Van Winkle, Alice In Wonderland, Robinhood, Miles Standish, Jack and Jill, Prince and the Pauper, Sir Launfal and Ivanhoe all were there in addition to many others. The story of the play traced the dream of a little girl who had fallen asleep and the characters appeared before her from the books on the shelves. As each character passed in review he spoke lines written by the children.

THE VITAL FLAME

A STIRRING SERIAL OF PRIMITIVE PASSIONS

CHAPTER LXI.

The Answer to Miles' Question.

Her father cleared his throat.

"I ought to have insured the vase, but I didn't. I took it back to Mr. Treman's room that night, and the following morning went back there to meet the purchaser. When I arrived, Treman was in bed, having his breakfast. We went into the sitting room together, and the first thing I saw was the vase—the original and highly valuable one—lying smashed in fifty pieces on the floor!"

Marcella started in dismay.

"And you hadn't insured it? Oh, what a calamity!" Her castles-in-the-air dissolved. Financial difficulties would continue. Then clutching at a straw:

"But how d'you know it was the original, if you couldn't really tell the two apart?"

"Two reasons. One was that the imitation was marked by me with a little sign. Secondly, it was carefully packed away in a box in a cupboard, where it still remained."

Marcella stared at the speaker whose head was bowed so dejectedly. How very careless he had been!

"Where did you leave the other vase, the valuable one?"

"Up on the mantel-piece. It seemed so safe—"

"And Warwick slept in the adjoining room all night?"

"Yes. He can't account for it. His bedroom window was open, and he thinks a cat may have wandered in from the fire-escape and so thru to the sitting room, and got up on the mantel-piece and knocked it over. He didn't hesitate to tell me how careless I had been about not packing it away."

Marcella's pretty eyes were rueful. Then a light, half-horror, half-excited suspicion dawned in them.

"You don't by any chance think that Warwick himself smashed the original, just to get us more and more in his power?"

Luckily, her father was too perturbed to notice the queer phrase, "more and more."

He shook his head.

"He seemed too upset and sorry for my loss to have done such a senseless thing. He said that he'd see my client for me, and try to strike a bargain with the copy. The latter was worth quite a sum, he assured me, since the original had gone."

"Indeed?" Another suspicion came to the girl's active mind. And then, with apparent irrelevance she asked:

"Did't you try and piece the original together?"

"I tried, but it was too far gone for that."

"And you're sure the other was the imitation?"

"Positively. My mark was there, just where I had made it. The vase was in the cupboard, in its wrapping, just as I had left it."

"And you went away, leaving Warwick to dicker with the client?"

"Yes. I'm no good at haggling. Besides, I was too upset—"

"I see." Marcella nodded. "Warwick told your client it was only a copy, did he?"

"No. Here's where the trouble happens. The purchaser, being detained, sent a message by telephone, asking that the vase be delivered at his home. Treman let it go without a word, beyond telling the client, by telephone, to deal with me direct. The next thing I knew was that a check came to me for twenty thousand dollars."

"But of course you sent it back again?" gasped Marcella, staring at her father. Always he had been the very soul of honor . . .!

Brokenly he stammered:

"I had paid the check into my bank before I realized they didn't know it was a copy. I thought that Treman had struck a clever bargain. And—and afterwards I salved my conscience with the thought that the two vases were so utterly alike—that, with the original gone forever, it was quite in order that the copy, being unique in itself, should be so highly priced—we needed the money, Marcella, you and I—"

"And, because of that," said the girl dreadly, and with shudder, "you've obtained the money 'under false pretenses'——you've gone and put yourself in the power of the law! Heavens! what on earth will happen to us when the truth comes out!"

* * * * *

Father and daughter returned to the Long Island bungalow the following morning.

Before leaving, Marcella rang up Miles. The weight on her mind was so appalling that it made her sound "distrait" and almost cold.

"Oh, no! I can't see you today. And—and please don't come in the station. Mr. Treman will be there."

Framed a pregnant pause. Then Miles, trying to sound calm, but very strained in tone:

"I thought we settled all that yesterday. You were to go to him and explain that—caring for me as you did, and do—it's quite impossible to go on with the engagement. Have you forgotten? Or shall I deal with him?"

She shivered. Treman would cast a slur upon her father. Not even Miles must ever know her father's lapse!

"I—Ishall talk to him myself," she stammered, realizing what a horribly false impression she was giving Miles. "Everything'll come out all right in the end. I know it will. I—I hope so."

(Strange words for a girl who, only yesterday, had agreed to snap the chains that bound her, with the least possible delay!

"You regret having promised me too much, then?" was a lover's natural assumption, spoken in a voice curt with anxiety.

"It isn't that. But I must take my time. I mustn't make him angry. He—he could do me so much harm!"

Hard hearing for a lover's ears!

"Marcella, did you tell me everything? Isn't there something that you're holding back?"

She hesitated. There was something . . . terrible . . .! He sensed it, too.

Her mind groped for adequate words to meet the situation. But not a phrase would come. She had to be sincere with Miles . . . sincere, or silent! And, perforce, she chose the latter, suddenly swinging the receiver back upon its hook.

He did not ring her up. She waited for five palpitating minutes, staring at the telephone.

"He doubts me. He is hurt and angry." The wheels of the railway train repeated the accusing sentences, in a dreary monotone.

"He doubts me. He is hurt and angry." The accusing sentences kept ringing in her ears. And was he not justified? Why had this shameful affair of father's cropped out to dampen her ardor for Miles and make her indifferent to the peculiar charm of a farewell conversation with one she loved? Again her heart called out for enlightenment. Her manner was indeed changeable and puzzling to one with whom she should be most frank. Frankness—that's what is needed in dealing with Miles—and courage. Had she told him everything? Yes, everything—but her father's error.

Another fine installment tomorrow.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

William H. Hoover, one of the first permanent settlers in Nemaha county, died at his home, 1330 F street. Mr. Hoover had much to do with the early history of the state.

The stone walks of the capitol ground were so covered with weeds, toads and standing water that passers-by could easily imagine themselves in a southern swamp.

The Indian baseball team, composed of Chief Eagle, Good Voiced Elk, Spotted Crow, White Eyes and other Indian braves, beat the university team, 8 to 5.

One of the most elaborate and brilliant reception of the year was given by Mrs. Dorgan, Mrs. Muir and Mrs. Wilson at the home of Mrs. Dorgan. About two hundred called.

J. Sterling Morton was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sawyer, where many of his friends and admirers were calling on him. He was to start his new weekly, the Dynamo, during the coming month.

Mrs. R. E. Giffen had published a little volume on the Omaha Indians.

CIVIL STRIFE IN BULGARIA

PEASANTS ARE STARTING A COUNTER REVOLUTION.

Threat of Another Balkan Conflagration if New Offensive Spreads Against Stamboulisky Supporters.

PARIS, June 11.—A counter revolution by peasants is reported under way in Bulgaria. Fighting has taken place in which the supporters of Stamboulsky, deposed premier, have been defeated, according to dispatches to Paris newspapers today.

Several thousand peasants took arms against the new government which was established after a sudden, bloodless coup de'etat Saturday and armored trains have been rushed to Plevna to suppress them, according to Le Journal's Sofia correspondent.

It is feared here that if counter-revolutionary fighting sperads the entire Balkans may once again become inflamed with war.

"Heavy fighting in many cities and in the streets of Sofia many have been killed and wounded," reports the Matin's Belgrade correspondent.

Another dispatch says that a Radomir, in Bulgaria, bands headed by Dr. Bottef, president of the chamber of deputies, and friendly to the Stamboulsky regime, have been defeated by troops of the new government.

Premier Stamboulsky, who had headed the Bulgarian peasant government since October, 1919, ruling wiht an iron hand and eventually dictating to the youthful King Boris, escaped the revolutionaries who seized the reinschaurdy, imprisoning practically the entire ministry. Stamboulsky fled to Slavovita, where he gathered a few hundred peasants and prepared for a counter revolt.

Deatchments of new government troops went to Slavovita in an attempt to capture the ex-premier today but he is reported once more to have escaped with a handful of his followers.

The peasants who supported Stamboulsky still are in the majority in Bulgaria and a counter-revolution on their part is regarded in Paris as certain of success, provided it is well organized.

BELGRADE, June 11.—From five to one hundred persons are reported to have been killed in counter-revolutionary fighting in Bulgaria, according to Sofia dispatches today

A new government headed by Professor Zankoff, a bourgeois belonging to no party, functions in Bulgaria.

The peasant government of Premier Stambouliisky was overthrown in a bloodless coup d'etat early Saturday, irregular military assisted by national troops quietly arresting all members of the cabinet except the prime minister, who fled.

King Boris, Bulgaria's youthful ruler, received the leaders of the revolutionary regime, and after the audience, at which he heard their explanation of the coup, gave his approval to the new government.

Strict martial law was immediately imposed thruout the country. A total of two hundred civilians, including many leaders of the peasant party, were arrested.

An eye-witness, describing the coup of Saturday, said the arrests and troop movements were carried out quietly and with mechanical regularity. To look at the streets which hummed with customary traffic the morning after the revolution, one would not have realized that a new government had been installed: here and there an armed patrol moved unostentatiously along.

Scattered uprisings by peasants in outlying districts led to guerilla warfare, however, and telephone lines northward of Socia were out.

A Real Event.

"I have a mind to give you a whipping," exclaimed the exasperated father.

"Well, dad," replied the athletic youth, "maybe you can; but if you succeed it will be some item for the sport page."—Boston Transcript.

MORE DEATHS OF GERMANS

FIVE SHOT BY FRENCH FOR VIOLATION OF SIEGE.

Dortmund is Scene of Violence, Following Assassination of French Officers By Native Civilians.

DORTMUND, June 11 Five Germans were shot and killed by French troops here during the night for violation of the state of siege provision forbidding civilians to be on the streets after dark

The killings followed closely the assassination of two French officers by three German civilians here Sunday

The acting mayor of the town and the head of the civil police have been arrested. The center of Dortmund is swarming with French troops in an ugly mood

A French account of the incident last night is that the Germans who were killed refused to halt at the command of a patrol.

SOCIAL REFORMERS MEET.

GENEVA, (By mail)—The international bureau of labor, which was created under the treaty of Versailles along with the league of nations, today offitially published the project of Don Eduardo Sanz Mattiv Escortin, Conde de Lizarraza and president of the Spanish institute of social reform for the holding at Buenos Aires of an international congress of social institutes

This would be the first of a series of annual international conventions of all such societies and organizations

By the inclusion of the project in its official publications the international labor bureau gave its full endorsement of the plan.

The project originated with the Spanist institute of social reform which at once took it up with the Argentine employers' association both of which gave their immediate approval

Millions depend on S.S.S. to purify their Blood

SINCE the days of the Cherokee Indians, man has relied upon nature to produce certain barks and herbs to purify the blood. Today, the manufacturers of S. S. S. gather thousands of tons of these certain barks and herbs annually and prepare in concentrated form, scientifically proportioned, that great blood purifier, called S. S. S. This is why S. S. S., since 1826, has been such a great success. It has meant to millions of underweight men and women a plus in their strength. S. S. S. builds blood-power. It builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting power. And fighting power destroys impurities! It always wins! it fights pimples, it fights skin eruptions, it fights rheumatism. It builds nerve-power—thinking power. These are the reasons which have made S. S. S. today the greatest blood-cleanser, body-builder and success builder.
Mr. James Chelemske, Camp Sherman School, Chillicothe, Ohio, writes: "I feel like a new man after taking S.S.S. It gave me a better appetite and cleared my skin of pimples and blackheads."
Try it yourself. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical. Get a bottle today!

DAVID MEETS A QUEER LITTLE WATER-MAN.

"THERE he goes!" David cried excitedly, as the little brown creature dived into the stream and disappeared. "Oh, shoot! I——"

"Hello, there, David!" laughed a merry voice, and Happy Giggles, the little elfin from Make-believe Land, hopped upon the bank at David's side. "What in the world are you chasing this morning, David, some wild animal?"

"Oh, hello, Happy Giggles!" shouted David. "It was the prettiest thing I ever saw! At first I thought it was some kind of a rat. Then I discovered it had a tail which was flattened at the end. There he is again!" And David pointed to a tiny island out in the centre of the pond. "Oh, Happy Giggles, please tell him I won't hurt him. I do want to see him closer!"

Happy Giggles whistled three times and waved to the little brown water-man, and the little water-man shook his funny brown paws.

"Of course, I'll come out now!" he laughed, diving into the water and swimming toward David and the elfin as fast as he could. "I'd never have run if I had known you were a friend of Happy Giggles." And he shook hands with David and the wee elfin. "I'm certainly glad to meet you folks. You see, it's very hard for a desman to know at a glance who will befriend him and who will harm him. It's safety first with me. I run and then do my looking."

"My goodness!" laughed David. "I don't blame you for running away, Mr. Desman. Folks like you for your fur, don't they?"

"Indeed, they do," said Happy Giggles. "And it certainly is too bad, for Happy Desman is a good-natured little fellow and never steals from any one."

"Only insects," laughed the little water-man. "They are our main diet. Our flesh isn't good to eat, but they try to catch us for our fur." And he pulled back the first layer of reddish-brown fur and showed David the beautiful ashy gray beneath that sparkled like silver in the sunlight. "I guess it would look lovely on a little girl's coat. That's why we build our doorways back under the water. Folks can't get to us so very easily. Now, if you remember, Billy

"There He Is Again!"

Beaver uses his tail as a rudder. But I use mine as an oar."

"Oh, that's how you can scoot through the water so swiftly, is it!" David laughed. "I'll bet you make better time than Billy Beaver does, don't you?"

"Indeed, I do," replied Happy Desman. "Why—put to a test, I can beat my cousin, Willy Muskrat, all to pieces when it comes to a water-race. I don't suppose you've noticed my trunk." And Happy Desman wiggled and twisted his funny little movable trunk until David and Happy Giggles got to laughing.

"It's just like the one Benny Elephant has," David laughed. "And you use it just the same, don't you?"

"Surely, I do," replied Happy Desman. "Why, I wouldn't know what to do without it. I use it to put things into my mouth just as you use your hands. That just reminds me. I must get home. So, if you'll excuse me, I'll see you again sometime."

And away darted Happy Desman under the water, and that was the last David ever saw of him.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

The Confession Leila Made to Madge.

WHEN, after Leila's paroxysm of sobs and tears, I suggested that she tell me "all about it," I expected fully to hear a recital, more or less hysterical, of her grievances against Bess Dean. And I knew only too well that the things she might tell me would be no chimeras, born of an excited imagination, but real facts calculated to arouse jealous wrath in the heart of any woman. But, instead, her clutch on my hands tightened, and she drew me closer, while she whispered fearfully:

"Oh, Madge, I am afraid—so afraid!"

"Afraid!" I echoed, incredulously, and then, as her terrified eyes stared into mine, there flashed into my brain an inkling of her meaning, and with eager joy in my voice, I dropped to my knees beside her, and gathered her once more into my arms.

"Oh! Leila, dearest! Do you mean?—you must—how wonderful!" I exclaimed, as her head nodded a quick, shy acquiescence, and her eyes dropped. "But, sweetheart, there is nothing to be afraid of. There's so small a margin of danger in these modern days, and as for the pain, of course——"

She raised herself on one elbow abruptly, her cheeks flushing carmine, her eyes glinting with indignation.

"Do you think me such a coward," she asked, "as to care for pain or danger?"

"I know you're not," I replied quickly, "but you spoke of being afraid——"

She sank back upon her pillow with that inexplicable look of terror again creeping over her face.

A Haunting Fear.

"I AM afraid," she moaned. "Horribly afraid. I—am—not—sure—I haven't even told Alfred or Mother yet—but—I—should have gone mad, I think, if I couldn't have talked to some one, and you are always so poised and strong—not a silly, useless thing like me."

"You mustn't call my friend names," I smiled, in an effort to divert her thoughts, an effort which I saw in the next second was as useless as it was banal, for she went on as if she had not heard it.

"Oh, it can't be true, Madge! I can't have it true! Not now! To think this should come to me now!"

At the anguish in her voice there swept over me a memory of the joyous, sacred hour which was mine when first I realized that I was to have the accolade of motherhood. I had known that to some women the knowledge brought dread instead of joy, but I acquitted gentle Leila Durkee of membership in that class. There must be some unusual terror swaying her to the hysteria which I saw in her eyes.

I tightened my clasp on her twisting hands, and spoke sharply.

"What Do You Mean?"

"But, Leila dear, you must tell me why you feel this way. I can't help you unless I know the reason for your terror."

Her eyes widened in amazement that I should not guess her meaning.

"Haven't you seen?" she asked. "That girl—Alfred—it's killing me—but if it were only myself I could go to Aunt Dora and get away from it all. But to have a—little—child come into the world with no home. Oh, Madge! It is awful—I can't stand it!"

There was such agony in her face and voice that if Alfred Durkee had been within reach of my hands I am afraid he would have had to summon a physician immediately afterward. "To think that gentle Leila, in the hour which should have been her greatest joy, should be suffering mental torture like this because of a callous girl's vanity and her husband's masculine blindness.

But there was no aid for Leila in anger against Alfred. She was on the verge of a hysterical breakdown, and I knew I must act quickly if I were to be of service to her. With deliberate intent, I drew my hands away, and spoke with slow, derisive coolness:

"I suppose you mean Bess Dean. Really, Leila, you are the greatest idiot I know."

She started as if I had struck her, and I was glad to see resentment against me flash into her eyes. Anything was better than the despairing terror which had dominated her.

"What do you mean?" she faltered at last.

"Exactly what I say," I returned coolly. "The mythical person who first converted a mole-hill into a mountain certainly had nothing on you. I thought you had some real reason for your terror, but if you have nothing more serious to weep over than Bess Dean, and Alfred's opinion of her, you're a mighty lucky woman, and I've wasted about a thousand dollars worth of sympathy!"

THE HOME KITCHEN

Here Are Ways to Vary Breakfast These Warm Days

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

APPETIZING summer breakfasts are always a bit of a problem for the housewife, especially in the city.

Cereals, instead of being served hot, can be jellied, moulded with minced fruit through them, or delicately fried and served with a light syrup, fruit juice or with lemon, sugar and melted butter.

Egg dishes of various kinds—omelettes, creamed eggs, jellied eggs and poached eggs may be used in turn with broiled chops or tripe, chicken livers on toast, chicken and pepper hash, shrimp fritters, creamed codfish, or any light dish made from leftovers. Almost anything will do which will make just the one warm dish that seems to be a necessity. Many like creamed toast with a few strips of broiled bacon.

In serving strawberries, the very large ripe ones are nice served with the hulls and dipped in powdered sugar. The smaller ones should be washed, hulled and then served with sugar and cream, or sugared, chopped and then served in hot quick biscuits—well buttered like miniature shortcakes. Always save some of the syrup to use over the biscuit.

Morning salads are a fad of the moment and are liked by many people. These salads are of the fresh spring onions, radishes and tender lettuce leaves that are culled from the rows when the lettuce is to be headed up, watercress with chives and Brazil nuts, sliced thinly. A fruit salad made with a boiled dressing, or a dressing of light mayonnaise, made without mustard and frothed with whipped cream, is good.

Cream cheese, home-made preferably, served with jam, or marmalade, is also very popular. The finest variety of this cheese is the Italian ricotta. This cheese is made by allowing the fresh milk to stand in a crock for several days. First the cream rises, then it gets deeper and thicker and when just right it is carefully removed and makes this most delicious cheese.

If fresh cherries are to be served they should be stoned, then sugared lightly and allowed to stand in a cool place. Just before serving drain them and serve with a little whipped cream on top. The juice makes an excellent luncheon drink. Sometimes the cherries are stewed and served in that way.

Stewed rhubarb is good while the stalks are tender and pink, but when it grows tough and fibrous it is too sour to be good. None of the small berries [illegible] breakfast use, though I believe [illegible] They may be [illegible], but if chilled the juices do not run freely with the sugar and they are also apt to be indigestible, especially for children.

There are certain kinds of bread that make the best toast. Usually a baker's loaf is better for the use than homemade bread. The whole-wheat bread [illegible] graham breads must be well [illegible] sometimes [illegible] the [illegible] on a hot dish in the oven for two or three [illegible] to warm them through before putting them onto the toaster [illegible] make better toast. These breads [illegible] moist and [illegible] take longer to toast than the drier and [illegible]

[illegible] are again in fashion as a breakfast [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] stewed prunes. Coffee [illegible] instead [illegible] a cup of breakfast drink topped with whipped cream.

HIS "DATE"

All week long the expectation to which his heart leaps comes as a lovely disturbing vision between his work and him, and yet when Saturday arrives, will he have the courage to ask the question the thought of her causes to rise to his eager lips? WINIFRED BLACK Writes About Four Years and Their Surprises

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THEY brought him back from the Land of Nowhere—the overseas man who hasn't known his own name for four years.

And when he came to himself he said something about the Argonne, and wanted to know whether he would be sent home from Brest or from Bordeaux.

And he was surprised when they told him that he had come home nearly four years ago and had been here ever since.

He asked for a morning newspaper—but when he read it a while he put it away and said it made his head ache to try to understand what all the printing was about.

"I thought the world would be different," he said, "when we got home. But here they are in the newspapers—the same old divorces and the same old murders and the same old 'probes' and investigations and scandals—I think I'll go to sleep again—and forget a while."

How would your world look to you if you had gone to sleep four years ago and just waked up this morning?

Look Backward, Yourself

The little daughter you loved so dear—what dreams you had for her—bright dreams full of hope and joy—Oh, yes, she's happy now, very happy in her own little home!

But it's her home—not yours, and your home is hers no longer, and somehow it's all so different from what you thought it might be—four little years ago.

That money you invested, you never even dared to hope it would turn out half so well as it has, but pshaw, what a little you risked!

Why in the world didn't you take a bigger chance? You thought $10,000 was a big sum—four years ago.

It looks like nothing to you now.

The neighbor who has always been so kindly—what? Has she gone across the dark river and you never knew? You never had a chance to say good-by and tell her how much you loved her before she went away—ah, well, you were very busy four years ago.

The boy that was the pride of your heart, how changed he is! It came so gradually that you have hardly noticed it—but if you had gone to sleep and left him light-hearted and affectionate and woke suddenly and saw him as he is today—cold and scheming and disillusioned—what a shock the change would be!

Four years ago Wilson was President and in full power. Lloyd George was Prime Minister of England, nobody had ever heard of the Fascisti—Emma Goldman was crazy to get to Russia and begin her "free life."

It's Different Now

We were all quoting "Flanders Field Where Poppies Grow." The skirts were growing shorter every day and so was the hair and somebody had just invented the word "flapper."

An overseas man was still a "Hero" and everybody gobbled up every word they could hear about Gen. Pershing.

Let's see, what was it we used to sing four years ago?

"Keep the Home Fires Burning"—who bothers even to light them—today?

Back from the Land of Nowhere into today after four years!

I'm afraid I shouldn't be able to stand the shock.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.

I'm a girl of 19 and engaged to a young man aged 24. The other night he made a date and failed to fill it and I got angry with him, although he made excuses and apologized for not coming. He said he would never disappoint me any more. But once before he did it and I forgave him, and I didn't this time.

He says that he loves me and there's no other girl for him. I love him, too. What do you think I should do? Should I forgive him?

Should a girl consider she's engaged without an engagement ring?

My folks think more of him than anybody I ever went with. Now, would you please advise me how to win his love back? I certainly do love this young man.

BRUNETTE.

BRUNETTE: Write the young man a note, setting a time for him to call. Then have a frank talk with him. This is your privilege, since he was once so devoted to you, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young woman in my 20's and have been married for a few years and have two lovely children.

My husband loves the children very dearly, but he is always out. He goes out every night and stays out late, and I have found out from some of my friends that he goes to dances and takes other girls home and goes about with different girls. He poses as single, though some [illegible] a married man.

[illegible] breaks my heart [illegible] I do [illegible] leave [illegible] husband, as I dearly love him, and also for the sake of the children.

Please advise me what to do and how I can persuade him to spend more time with me and the children. We have a lovely home and everything attractive and up-to-date, but it means nothing to me when I can't have his true love.

BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER: Have an affectionate talk with your husband. Appeal to him and say that you are unhappy. But don't nag him, my dear. Do try to make yourself so attractive that you will win him away from these other girls. You can do it. Act toward him as you did when you were engaged. This is a good plan.

Above all things, don't speak to these other girls and don't discuss your unhappiness with any one.

Remember, [illegible] all this talk may be mere gossip, [illegible] dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two old maids and are both very lonely. What shall we do to make ourselves more attractive to men? We both have nice clothes and make good money.

HEART-BROKEN OLD MAIDS.

YOUR HEALTH

Belief in Your Doctor Is Sometimes Half the Cure

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

YESTERDAY I saw a young woman on the verge of insanity because of her terrible fright over what a doctor had told her. She had complained of her eyes and the oculist suggested that as soon as clouds appear before the sight blindness is near at hand.

I am happy that most doctors are extremely conservative and rarely make dire predictions. Sometimes you get angry with your doctor because he tells you so little. His education and experience have taught him how foolish it is to make positive statements about health and disease. On this account he says little.

It is not safe to be too confident. Particularly is it dangerous to predict evil. Why? Because nature has a way of accomplishing wonderful cures. There is one thing I wish everybody in the world would remember. It is this:

The natural tendency of disease is toward recovery.

There may be long delays. There will be days and days when things look black. The weeks may run into months. But the joy of it is that after a while this wonderful human body will find its stored-up forces asserting themselves, the evil agents of disease will be driven back, ever so slowly perhaps, but little by little improvement will come.

There can be no doubt that the followers of Christian Science hold certain advantages over the rest of us. By constant exercise of the powers of faith and hope, they make themselves invincible against the depressing effects of hysteria, discouragement and despair.

My patient of yesterday did not need medicine. She needed faith, hope, encouragement, happiness and confidence in herself.

You must use common sense about your ailments. Don't wake up in the night to worry over some impending disaster. Live such a life of physical righteousness that your sleep will be undisturbed. Get up refreshed and strong, ready for whatever the day offers. There may be trials and burdens, but a vigorous and healthy body will help to carry them bravely.

Mind and body are so related that neither can be normal unless both are right. A disturbed mind upsets the functions of the body. Illness and pain interfere with normal mental operation.

Juvenal sang: "Mens sana in corpore sano"—who can doubt that the essence of life is formulated here—a sound mind in a sound body? Strength and contentment of mind cannot be divorced from health and vigor of body. Neither can perfect health fail to determine the mental processes.

Consult a doctor who is known to you as a capable practitioner and an honest wise man. Give him the chance to examine thoroughly into your physical condition. Then accept his views, confident he is right. Let him carry all the responsibility. Then you won't worry.

You will develop a philosophy which will sustain and comfort you. The surest prescription for cure is 50 per cent professional skill and 50 per cent. confidence in your doctor.

Answers to Health Questions

K. K. K. Q—From my waist to my feet there is a numb feeling and my lower limbs are always cold. Will you please tell me what causes this and what to do for it?

A—This is probably due to poor circulation. You should take more outdoor exercise and should keep your general health built up. Have your family doctor examine you. Follow the advice he gives you.

* * *

A READER. Q—I have very weak eyes. Will you please tell me what I can do to strengthen them besides wearing glasses?

A—You should make sure that your glasses are properly fitted and you should wear them all the time. Have treatment by an eye specialist and follow the advice he gives you.

INQUISITIVE Q—Will you please tell me whether permanent waving is injurious to the hair?

2 and 3—Kindly advise me about ——.

A—It is not advisable to have the hair artificially curled too often, as it is apt to break the hair.

2 and 3—Kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and restate your question.

* * *

S. M. S. Q—I have a swollen gland. It is not painful, but is quite sore at times. What would you advise me to do?

A—If the gland grows larger consult your family physician or apply at a hospital clinic for an examination and treatment.

* * *

ANXIOUS Q—I am a girl 16 years old and am 5 feet 1 inch in height. Will you please tell me how I can increase my height?

A—Stretching exercises, such as touching the floor with the fingers without flexing the knees, will help you. If possible, join an athletic club or Y. W. C. A. and have the physical director outline a course of exercises for you.

* * *

J. C. H. Q—Every morning when I awaken my hands are numb and there is a pricking sensation in them. What do you think causes this?

A—This is probably due to poor circulation or to neuritis. You should have an examination by your physician to find the underlying cause and then suitable treatment can be outlined. Follow the advice your doctor gives you.

* * *

MRS. M. P. Q—I have a very troublesome wart growing under my thumb nail. At times it opens and is very sore. What would you advise me to do?

A—I would advise you to consult a skin specialist and he will tell you whether or not it will be necessary to use radium or X-ray on the part in an effort to cure this condition.

How to Make Current Modes Enhance Your Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

A GENERAL survey of the clothes being worn this season brings to my mind a point which I often mention, but which I am tempted to bring up again and again. This is the oft-repeated phrase "dressing to type."

Alas, I am afraid the words in themselves are to many people simply an empty expression! You know there are so many of these expressions, things we hear again and again and which come to mean nothing more to us than a mere jumble of words.

But I find that when we fix a phrase in our minds by concrete examples, it comes to mean much more, especially if the example brings in something that we meet in the problems of every day.

The particular subject I have in mind just now is hats. And the reason the subject appeals to me particularly is because an expert milliner assured me that "hats this season are either very large or very small."

Then I saw a cunning little girl choose a ducky hat that just suited her because it fitted her head to perfection and ended its tiny brim with the becoming flare of a diminutive helmet.

I wished that every very small person could be as lucky in choosing the very small hat that would accent her littleness so perfectly.

There are big hats, too, of course. And these are not all for big people. There are some big hats that are altogether fetching when worn by the small person. But if you are really too small for a big hat, don't compromise by an in-between size. Avail yourself of the season's vogue for the hat that is very small.

It's the same way with colors. Bright colors are very smart, and if they happen to suit your type of beauty, so much the better. If you are a brunette with dark eyes and vivid coloring you will be delighted with a red straw hat to shade your eyes from the sun. They're stunning with a white frock and red slippers, you know.

But if you're a blonde with more delicate coloring, red may be much too strong a color for you to attempt. For it makes the pale complexion appear more pale, of course.

This being so, don't let yourself be so intrigued by the idea of red hat and slippers to match that you go ahead and plan such a costume regardless.

For no matter how attractive a certain fad may seem when pictured in the abstract it is never satisfactory unless it suits the person who affects it.

You may see a frock with a tiered skirt in the window which you think is stunning, but if you know that you have a few too many pounds to attempt such a skirt, don't let anything induce you to buy it. Recommend it to a friend who can wear it, but remember always that regard for beauty comes before regard for fashion!

It's very well to be up to the mode, but it avails you nothing if you achieve this end at the sacrifice of your beauty.

There's the prevailing fashion for poke-shaped hats. The up tilt of the poke brim is piquant and altogether attractive on some women, while there are others who should never consider a poke shape, no matter how fashionable this particular shape may happen to be.

Learn what type of hat looks best on you—turned down, turned up, large or small. You can always find interesting variations of this type. And if you can wear both large and small hats, so much the better.

THIRD PARTY POTION MIXED

CHRISTENSEN ANNOUNCES IT TO BE IN RUNNING.

Farmer-labor Candidate in Last Election Declares Ford and Hearst Only Men Not Under Wall Street.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Third party "political medicine to cure the country's ills" is being mixed here today.

Parley P. Christensen farmer-labor party candidate for president in the last election, arrived from a world tour with a forecast for a third party in 1924. He announced thirty thousand invitations have been issued for a farmer-labor convention July 3 to pave the way for candidates next year and to "formulate a third party voice."

Political significance was also attached to the western junket of Gov. Al Smith, New York, who arrived in Chicago en route to French Lick where he will meet Tom Taggart, democratic "boss" of Indiana. Smith's name has not been linked with third party gossip but he has raised the "wet" issue in the coming campaign with his prohibition enforcement repealer which it is declared, may cause a fight between "liberal" and "orthodox dry" democrats.

Christensen declared that "orthodox" republicans and democrats cannot merge their policies with the farmer-labor movement being strongly felt. He added more fuel to that under the "political pot" by describing Henry Ford and William Randolph Hearst the only men not dominated by Wall street.

Christensen declared that farm and industrial issues will be the major ones of the next campaign.

"New York financial interests are trying to muddle the real issues by throwing out the world court bait," he asserted.

The farmer-labor convention will not be dominated by any special groups and will be comprised of delegates not standpatters of the old parties.

Smith will be the guest in Chicago of George Getz, a former business associate and "doped" as one of Smith's 1924 campaign managers. He will also meet Charles Fitzmorris, a political figure and former Chicago police chief.

Smith will attend a dinner here Tuesday at which democratic political chieftains will be the principal guests.

SMITH TO FRENCH LICK

New York Governor During "Rest" to Learn Political Strength in Indiana.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., June 11.—Gov. Al Smith of New York is due here this week to "take a rest" at the resort owned by Tom Taggart, Indiana democratic boss.

While here, Smith undoubtedly will learn at first hand his strength with the Indiana democrats as a "wet" candidate for president and his chances to swing the Hoosier vote away from Senator Ralston, this state's favorite son.

Taggart sounded out the sentiment of the Indiana democracy pretty thoroly last week. After the democratic editors of the state finished their annual meeting at Vincennes, Taggart invited them to French Lick. The result was one of the biggest love feasts the party has ever seen in off years. During the proceedings Taggart obtained a lot of information and he will be able to tell Governor Smith just how he stands with the democrats of Indiana.

FORCED BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Man Who Slashed Wife's Throat With Razor Held By Detectives On Operating Table.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Blood forced from her husband who is alleged to have attempted to kill her saved the life of Mrs. Theodore Marfy today.

Marfy came to the home of her son where she was living and slashed Mrs. Marfy's throat with a razor, relatives asserted. Physicians despaired of saving her life without a blood transfusion.

Detectives who captured Marfy, an imposing physical specimen, rushed him to the operating room and held him while a pint and a half of blood was transferred.

"It was liquor that caused me to do it," Marfy moaned in his cell today, in explaining the alleged attack.

SUBSCRIBE BOND ISSUE

Notes of New Austrian Government Taken Fifteen Minutes After Offer.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Within fifteen minutes after the opening of business today an issue of $25,000,000 of 7 per cent guaranteed bonds of the new Austrian government were oversubscribed and the books closed.

J. P. Morgan and company made the public offering of the bonds. They announced at 10:15 a. m. that the issue was over-subscribed.

The total loan to be raised by this bond issue is $126,000,000, of which $25,000,000 was allotted to this country. Cables announced that the British allotment was also fully subscribed soon after the opening.

JAPAN HAS FEEBLE JURY LAW

Like Mr. Volstead's Refreshment—It Has No Kick.

TOKIO. (By Mail).—Japan now has a jury law—theoretically. There has never been a trial by jury in Japanese courts, but the recent session of the Diet (parliament) passed a bill creating a jury system.

But the Japanese jury will be something like Volstead refreshment—no kick.

The new law provides that judges may or may not adopt the verdict of the jury. The discretion of the judge is the sole and only determining factor, just as it is now. If the jury happens to return the same sort of verdict the judge had in mind, all well and good. If not, the judge will tell the jury he's sorry—but, the verdict is thus and so.

"We admit that the new law is rather invertebrate," observed one of the Japanese newspapers, "but still it is a step in the right direction.

Japanese newspapers fought for the jury law—although they wanted a stronger one than this—and they have been long clamoring for reform of court procedure. Japanese courts operate upon exactly the reverse of the American system. Here it is assumed, in most criminal cases, that the accused is guilty, and the trial consists of the accused having to prove himself innocent—instead of an assumption of innocence until guilt is proved.

TWO-MINUTE TOURS.

They are growing lemons in New Zealand.

Oh, yes, New Zealand is near the South Pole, and everybody hereabouts thinks of it as a cold place. But its climate really is more like that of Italy than any other place.

These New Zealand lemons have recently reached the Canadian market. The citrus fruit industry there is comparatively new. Along about 1912 some enterprising Englishmen, visiting New Zealand, were struck with the possibilities of its climate, which they found much like that of the Riviera.

"The lemon industry has gained rapidly since that time," says the national geographic society, "and latest reports show that one New Zealand firm alone has handled 11,000 cases of lemons this year.

New Zealand is the nearest of the British dominions to the South Pole. The distance separating the northernmost mainland point of Great Britain from the North Pole is, however, 500 miles less than the distance between New Zealand's southernmost point and the South Pole."

GOVERNMENT MAKES BRICKS.

BUENOS AIRES, (By mail) The Argentine republic is now working as a brickmaker. In order to help alleviate the scarcity of homes in Buenos Aires, the government has decided to take every possible measure, and the department of archives of the federal government has undertaken the manufacture of bricks. The present plant produces now 2,500,000 bricks per month and the output may be increased soon to 4,000,000 bricks per month. It is believed the construction of buildings will be greatly stimulated by this government [illegible] praise.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

MANY WASHOUTS CAUSED BY RAIN

Heavy Downpour in Southern Nebraska Delays Trains and Overflows Creeks—Lightning Interferes With Signals.

REYNOLDS, Neb., June 10. — A washout just west of this place on the Denver-Kansas City main line of the Burlington railway late Saturday evening delayed passenger train No. 17, westbound, five hours, until a train of material and men could be run from Wymore and crib up the track. Six inches of rain fell in two hours over the Kansas state line Saturday afternoon, and a very heavy rain occurred here and at Gilead, north of here. Rose creek, which follows the railway tracks, and which is crossed by several bridges in this vicinity, overflowed, washed out dirt under the tracks causing five or six holes which were from three to five feet deep and several feet across.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., June 10.—Lightning interferred Saturday with the railway automatic signalling device installed thru here, and caused the signals to set against trains. Several trains were delayed. Brakemen had to go ahead and feel out the way for the engineers.

Too Much Rain Near Fullerton.

FULLERTON, Neb., June 10. — Heavy rains over the Loup and Cedar Valleys from Genoa to Spalding has caused heavy losses to farmers in the flooding of lowlands and the washing out of crops on the higher elevations. Several miles of the Spalding branch of the Union Pacific railroad was badly damaged and trains were delayed for two days.

The new power dam of the Nebraska Gas and Electric company stood the test in fine shape, but the floor of the power house was completely covered with water.

The crops north of Fullerton were damaged by hail. Some farmers report the loss of livestock.

CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAID

CEREMONIES OF CALVARY EVANGELICAL HELD SUNDAY.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Edifice Expected to Be Completed by Thanksgiving Day.

The cornerstone of Calvary Evangelical church at Eleventh and Garfield streets was laid with appropriate ceremonies Sunday afternoon. The Rev. J. Scherbacher made the principal address. Misty weather was not encouraging, and was the cause of slight abbreviations of parts of the program, but there was a good attendance.

The church is to cost $50,000. Twenty-three Sunday school class rooms are to be provided in the basement which will care for an attendance of four hundred; the main auditorium will seat five hundred, and there will also be a balcony. The new edifice will be completed, it is expected, by Thanksgiving day.

After songs by the male quartet and by the congregation, a scripture lesson by Rev. H. Sohl, and a prayer by the Rev. J. A. Adams, Rev. Mr. Scherbacher, the presiding elder, gave the address. He compared the life of Christ as a spiritual cornerstone to the physical cornerstone about ot be laid.

"The laying of this cornerstone has a great spiritual significance," he said. "It is strange but rather significant that the Lord applies this comparison to himself, as we read in Matthew and Mark. Jesus Christ is the living spiritual foundation, the hope of man and the only hope of the world. The Lord is the foundation cornerstone, and I would like to have you know how precious a stone He is. He gave himself for us.

"He is the foundation stone, not only because of what He is doing, but because of what He has already done, and because of what He is going to do. He is today building up a spiritual church of God. The congregation is building this church so that Christ may be proclaimed to the children of the community."

Outlined Church History.

L. L. Burd, chairman of the building committee, briefly outlined a history of the church. Rev. A. P. Ash, of the Salem Evangelical church, he said, started a Sunday school in the vicinity of the Calvary church in 1897, and secured a small chapel near Tenth and Wood streets. In 1902 the congregation had outgrown the chapel, bought a lot for $300 on which the present building stands, and moved a small church there in 1903. This, too was outgrown, so that about two years ago, with a Sunday school of three hundred and seventy-five enrolled members, it was decided to build anew.

D. O. Pettit, chairman of the finance committee, also made a brief talk, and outlined the financial obligations assumed by the congregation. He predicted that the structure would be completed by Thanksgiving.

The Rev. G. B. Bancroft told of the contents of a box to be put in the cornerstone. J. M. Madsen, president of the board of trustees of the church, placed it in the stone at 4:30 p. m. In it were. The New Testament, a Discipline of the Evangelical church, copies of the "Evangelical Messenger," and the "Missionary Gem," a paper for children, and the "Golden Now," the paper for the cradle roll. Also in the box were placed the membership list of the church, names of the cradle roll, names of the board of trustees, names of the church building committee, the name of the architect, name of the contractor, the names of the other officers of the church, a historical sketch of the church, a note by the pastor addressed "To whom it may concern."

After the box had been put in the stone, the pastor, Rev. Mr Bancroft closed the ceremony by using the ritual which is provided for such occasions and said a benediction over the cornerstone.

LEGION IS TO GIVE PROGRAM

The American Legion post will hold a special program at its hall at 8 p. m., Monday. R. J. Horsefield, of the Ninth district of the veterans' bureau will be the speaker. Each member of the post has been asked to invite a business man or friend to attend. The subject of Mr. Horsefield's address will be the relation of the legion to the business world in caring for the disabled soldiers. Paul Reed and Mrs. Belle Long-Fuller will sing. Mrs. Fuller will be accompanied by Miss Marion Kislingbury. Mrs. Fuller will also give a reading. Following the program the auxiliary of the legion will serve refreshments.

CHURCH CELEBRATION HELD

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF BEATRICE CHRIST CHURCH

Bishop Ernest Vincent Shayler in Charge of the Confirmation Services.

BEATRICE, Neb., June 10.—Christ Church, Episcopal, opened a two-day celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of its installation Sunday. Services included confirmation services held in the evening with Bishop Ernest Vincent Shayler in charge. Among those participating were Rev. Charles H. Smith, for the past forty-seven years continuously pastor of St. James church at Buffalo, N. Y. He is a brother of S. C. and J. E. Smith of Beatrice.

The celebration closes Monday evening with a banquet at which Adam McMullen will officiate as toastmaster. Among those on the toast list are Bishop Allen Beecher of western Nebraska, John S. Hedelund of Omaha and the Rev. W. A. Mulligan, for the past twenty-seven years pastor of Christ church.

Christ church was one of the first organized in Beatrice. The first service was held in 1869 in the old stone Methodist church, located where the Beatrice high school now stands. It was in 1873 that a permanent church was established and a building created at the same place where the beautiful edifice stands now.

Of the members present at the inauguration only two remain, one being S. C. Smith and the other his brother, J. E. Smith, who, having been elected to the office of senior warden in 1874, still retains that honor in an unbroken period for over forty-nine years. An interesting history of the activities of the church has been compiled and published by the two brothers and distributed among members of the parish.

RAILWAY SPENDS MILLIONS

More Than a Million Being Spent On Bridges Alone On Its Lines West.

The Northwestern railroad is now working out an improvement program for the present year which totals $2,693,276 for the lines west of the Missouri river. The biggest item in the improvement list is for the Blair bridge over the Missouri river, where $600,000 is being spent in rebuilding the bridge. The old piers and end spans are being used so that only the part across the river proper is replaced. This improvement is designed to make it possible to bring the heaviest engines used by the road over the river at this place. In the past all heavy power has crossed the river at Omaha, thus adding considerable mileage to heavy trains. Another item of $773,210 is appropriated for improvements to other bridges on lines in Nebraska.

The following is the tabulated list of improvements, to be completed on the lines west of the Missouri river:

Reduction of grades near Harrison, Neb., and at various points in Wyoming	$ 238,130
Casper, Wyo—Addition to engine house; fuel oil tank; ninety-five foot turntable	140,390
Chadron, Neb.—Addition to engine house and machine shop; installation of ninety-five foot turntable	88,495
Orin, Wyo—Engine shelter, water station and wye track	48,873
Rapid City, S. D.—Extension to engine house	15,000
Between Chadron and Casper—New passing tracks and extension to present passing tracks, at various points	217,970
Casper, Wyo.—Yard revisions and new yard	230,800
Wall, Oelrichs and Oral, S. D.—Extensions to passing tracks	27,645
Additional passing tracks and yard tracks, various points	100,000
Improvements to bridges	773,210
Train dispatching telephone line, Dakota Junction to Casper	57,000
Train dispatching telephone line, Chadron to Rapid City	34,000
Renewal of ballast between Harrison, Neb. and Orin, Wyo	30,000
Rebuilding Blair bridge for heavy power	600,000
Installation new ninety-pound rail, South Omaha to Scribner, Neb.	50,000
Water treating plant at Fremont, Neb.	20,000
Machinery and tools for various shops	12,763
Total	$2,693,276

K. OF P. HOLD MEMORIAL

Special Services Held at First Baptist Church Sunday Morning in Memory of Departed.

The First Baptist church was filled to overflowing Sunday morning when an impressive service was held, in which members of Lincoln lodge No. 16, Knights of Pythias and their families were invited guests. This program was combined in the Children's day service immediately following the regular service.

The music by the choir was especially adapted for the occasion. The sermon was by the pastor, W. T. Elmore.

The scripture lesson was the reading of the Biblical story of "Jonathan and David," and the historical story of "Damon and Pythias," which found its origin in the city of Syracuse, on the island of Sicily, to the south of Italy, upon which the order of the Knights of Pythias was founded.

Rev. Mr. Elmore founded his sermon upon the theme of "Friendship," and stated that every great and good object was based upon that great thought of Friendship, and without which there would be no life, no joy, no peace.

The interweaving of the story of "Jonathan and David," and that of "Damon and Pythias" was fully exemplified in the formation of the great advocate of "Friendship" which is the leading theme in all fraternal is the leading theme in all fraternal orders and should be made the theme of all the nations of the earth.

DEDICATION HELD FOR GIRLS' HOME

Institution at Forty-ninth and Holdrege Streets Is Consecrated to Home and to Protestant Welfare Work.

Dedication services for the Interdenominational Girls' home at Forty-ninth and Holdrege streets were held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon with a fair sized audience in attendance.

Rev. D. W. Parker, pastor of the Lake View church, was chairman, and Rev. A. A. Brooks of Trinity Methodist church had charge of the dedication services proper. Rev. A. J. Craft made the principal address. The building was consecrated to interdenominational home work for girls, and protestant welfare work for people of all ages.

A solo by Miss Ethel Evans and group singing lead by Robert Shepard began the program. Following a prayer by Rev. Mr. Brooks, Mrs. J. L. Claflin of University Place gave an address. The home, she said, is not only a necessity but a moral obligation since it is the right of every child to have the full advantages of home life, so far as they can be given in such an institution, and of a proper education.

Dr. Croft, pastor of the First Methodist church of University Place, made the dedication address. He spoke of the need of welfare work, and the peculiar appropriateness of such a home as this, giving protection and advantages to girls of all protestant faiths.

Rev. Mr. Brooks, assisted by Gideons and trustees of the association to the number of twelve, went thru a short ritual and gave readings for the formal services of dedication. The program was closed by Dr. Croft, who gave the Lord's prayer and by Rev. J. J. Christner, who offered a benediction.

OIL PIPE LINE UNDER WAY

Said That by Tapping New Wells It Will Not Decrease Rail Tonnage.

Reports from western Nebraska where large crews are at work on the Sinclair oil company's new pipe line, are that fair progress is being made, and that a large section of the pipeline itself will be completed within the next few weeks. Material has been unloaded at a number of places in Nebraska and in the North Platte valley forces of men have been employed in putting the pipe in the ground. In the vicinity of Minatare it was found necessary to make a considerable change in the location of the line because the first survey had passed thru some extensive alkali beds. This alkali, it is claimed, will eat holes in the pipe within a few years, and to avoid this trouble about twenty miles of the line was relocated. The line was carried to the hills on the north side of the valley at this place to avoid the alkali. This discovery was made after the right of way had been purchased and the new right of way must now be purchased in the preferred location. Not only had the right of way been purchased but pipe had been strung along the first selected line, and the pipe must now be moved to the new location.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Zion Lutheran Congregation Near Hampton Observes Its Golden Jubilee Sunday.

HAMPTON, Neb., June 10.—Zion Evangelical Lutheran congregation, four miles north-east of Hampton, celebarted the golden jubilee of the organization, Sunday. Two services were held, one beginning at 10 a. m. and one at 3 p. m. A sacred concert was given in the evening. The jubilee speaker in the morning was the Rev. Theo. Moellering of Cincinnati, O., a former pastor of the congregation. The Rev. C. F. Brommer, the present pastor, addressed the surviving charter members of the church. The Rev. H. Moellering of Snyder. Neb., spoke in the afternoon. A male choir, directed by Prof. J. T. Suhr, and a mixed choir, directed by Prof. E. Lueders, sang in both services.

The early history of Zion church is closely associated with the pioneer history of Nebraska, the first members, Martin Werth and family, settling in Hamilton county in October, 1869. Two of the charter members now living are widows of Civil War veterans. Martin Werth's nearest neighbors were eight miles away, whereas the nearest family of his faith was twenty miles away. Straggling Indians were occasional uninvited visitors.

The first church, now used for school purposes, was built in 1877; the second in 1883; the third in 1897. The present church has a seating capacity of 700.

The church record shows that during the past fifty years 1,080 have been baptized, 657 confirmed, 197 couples united in marriage, and 278 members buried. Though three daughter congregations have been branched off in the course of time, the mother church still numbers 476 baptized persons, 312 communicants, confirmed members over fourteen years old, 99 voting members, and 92 children in school.

FLOWER DAY OF W. C. T. U.

Bouquets Distributed by Workers to Hundreds of Shut-Ins and Public Servants.

Eight Women's Christian Temperance Union members worked most of the day Sunday distributing flowers to shut-ins, inmates of prisons, and public servants. The Sunday nearest to June 10 is flower day each year for the W. C. T. U. over the country.

Eighteen members of the union spent Saturday making the little bouquets, each tied with a white ribbon and with a Bible verse attached. The women Sunday started early in the morning. The program for the day included speaking and singing put on at the state penitentiary and the reformatory. Mrs. P. T. McGreer gave the talks on the responsibilities to which the inmates are subjected in view of their comrades' well being. Elmer Hurling sang. Six hundred bouquets were given out at the penitentiary alone. Three inmates of the city jail, the policemen on duty, and firemen were all presented with tokens.

Spanish war veterans from all parts of Nebraska will soon be on their way to Omaha to attend the reunion in commemoration of the twenty-fifth year since the United States became involved in the Spanish-American war.

A crowd that more than half filled the lower floor of the city auditorium Sunday afternoon heard Zack Harris lecture on "Americanism and the Ku Klux Klan." Admission was upon presentation of an invitation sent out by the klan. Mr. Harris lectured at the auditorium here on February 25 on the same subject.

As usual, police made numerous runs Sunday to quell disturbances made by children. "They know that we can't do anything to them," said one officer, "except go out and give them a talking to." One gang youngster had to be visited twice during the day, said the desk officer, to persuade them from throwing mud balls.

Between $500,000 and $600,000 in counterfeit American and Canadian revenue stamps were seized by Detroit police.

Mrs. Evt W. Russell pleaded innocence Monday morning when arraigned before Justice of Peace W. A. Hawes on a charge of writing a no fund check of $700. She was brought to Lincoln from Salem, Neb., late Sunday by Constable E. Immenhausen. A complaint filed against her by the county attorney charges that the check was written May 26 on the Lincoln State aNtional bank and payable to the order of the Nebraska Moon Motor company. The case was continued until 9 a. m. Friday. The defendant was released on $1,000 bond.

Adolf Dudek, cashier of the Farmers' State bank at Clarkson, filed Monday with the state railway commission a petition of merchants and shippers asking that the Northwestern railroad company be ordered to put in an unloading platform at that station. He says the town is an important shipping point and that $86,000 worth of business was done there last year by the railorad company. He says that auto dealers are compelled to drive their machines from Omaha because there is no place to unload at Clarkson. The only way unloading can be done now is to hire boards from the lumber company.

Fred Eissler, 449 North Tenth, whose case had been continued from last Friday, appeared in police court Monday on a charge of violating the sewer sanitary ordinance. A complaint filed by Plumbing Inspector Frank Meiker charges that Mr. Eissler installed plumbing at 449 North Tenth contrary to city regulations, in that, a connection was made with a sewer with no trap between and sinks were enclosed in wood and that Mr. Eissler did not obtain a permit from the city before putting in the plumbing. The property was not solely owned by Mr. Fissler. The case was continued until June 21 and in the meantime the matter is to be thoroly investigated.

Children's day was emphasized at St. Paul's Methodist church Sunday by the baptism of thirteen babies, by the pastor, Rev. Walter Aitken, at the morning service. A dozen persons joined after the final hymn. The water used for baptismal purposes came from the river Jordan, and was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Woods, brought back from their recent trip abroad. Doctor Aitken said that while other water would do quite as well, that from the Jordan was considered precious because of its sacred associations. The pastor gave each infant a hearty kiss after he had administered the rite. One baby cried out, but quit, when the minister took it in his arms. The pulpit was banked with flowers, one immense bouquet of peonies attracting unusual attention. A large congregation was present.

COWGILL HAS ZONING PLAN

MORE DRASTIC IN WAY THAN PENDING ORDINANCE.

Proposes to Require Sideyard Spaces of Six Feet Whether or Not Building Set on Corner Lot.

Commissioner Cowgill introduced at Monday's council meeting a setback or zone ordinance which, in its application to sideyard spaces, is more drastic than the original zoning ordinance so bitterly assailed in campaign literature carrying the names of five candidates said to have been picked by Governor Bryan and the municipal ownership forces.

The ordinance presented by the street department head retains the present 20-foot setback but amends to permit of a lessened space in front, not less than ten feet, when other setbacks along side the proposed new structure are less than twenty feet.

It proposes sideyard spaces of 5 to 6 feet. The present ordinance requires sideyard spacing only on corner lots. The pending zone ordinance proposes a twelve foot total spacing on the two sides, same toatl as proposed by Commissioner Cowgill The commissioner, however, requires a fixed minimum on each side while the much discussed and original zoning ordinance is more flexible. It would, for instance, permit nine feet on one side and three feet on the other.

Mr. Cowgill provides in his ordinance that the same set-back rule shall apply to retaining walls more than 5 1-2 feet high as applies to buildings. His ordinance also requires that any person applying for permission to build shall furnish a plat of the lot and of adjacent buildings to show conditions. He provides in his ordinance that ground for buildings shall be staked out by competent surveyors, the engineering staff of the city being available for the work at a reasonable fee.

RELIEF FUND IS INVESTED

SUM OF $1,950,000 FOR SOLDIERS BEARS INTEREST.

State Board Completes Investment By Purchasing $573,000 of Bonds Issued in Nebraska.

The state board of educational lands and funds bought bonds amounting to $573,000 Monday and completed the investment of $2,000,000 which the legislature two years ago appropriated for use as a trust fund for relief of Nebraska soldiers of the world war. At the time the appropriation was made to be raised by taxation $50,000 of the total amount was given outright for direct relief. The remainder was to be invested and the interest to be turned over to a committee representing the American Legion.

This fund is entrusted to the board of educational lands and funds, comprising Governor Bryan, Secretary of State Pool, Treasurer Robinson, Land Commisisoner Swanson and Attorney General Spillman.

At a meeting in the governor's office the purchase of additional bonds was agreed upon and thus the investment of the entire fund is completed. A small balance which may remain in the fund is to be invested in liberty bonds.

Governor Bryan has for some time voiced the belief that the board would not have the entire fund invested by July 1 and that probably $800,000 would lapse unless reappropriated by the legislature. Secretary Swanson of the board and Treasurer Robinson tried to allay the alarm felt by the governor. They contended it would be invested or handled in a way that would prevent any portion of the $2,000,000 from lapsing. At one time the governor urged the purchase of liberty bonds if no other securities could be hed. The board was able to find home securities sufficient to take up the entire fund. About $90,000 of the bonds had to be obtained from brokers. Others were bought direct from city officers issuing them.

The following bonds made up the list bought:

Lincoln school 5 per cent	$175,000.00
Bethany, water, 5 per cent ..	7,000.00
Clarks, paving, 5¼ per cent	33,000.00
Newman Grove, paving 5 per cent	25,000.00
College View, sewer, 5 per cent..	35,000.00
Blue Hill, school 5 per cent.....	15,000.00

In the past fifty days it has rained thirty-four in Gage county. Indian creek through Wymore is very high Bill's creek thru Blue Springs and the north of Wymore, overflowed its banks in many places. Much damage to crops, fencing and county bridges is reported. On the Chapman farm, two miles west of Wymore, a twenty-five acre field of corn was washed out. The growing corn was about five or six inches high, on bottom land in a bend of Indian creek. On the O. B. Allington farm, just west of Blue Springs, overflows occurred causing considerable damage to corn, hay, gardens and a loss of some young chickens. On the Jasper Mitchell dairy farm, on Bills creek north of Wymore thirty acres of corn was washed, fully two thirds of it being ruined, a three acre patch of potatoes was overflowed, and the creek came dangerously high in his feed lots and chicken yards and overflowed a highway and bridge north of the house to hours.

117 GRADUATES!

At our Commencement exercises a few days ago, we graduated 117 young men and young women; and when we say GRADUATES we do not mean NEAR graduates, but honest-to-goodness GRADUATES—those who have finished all requirements and have earned their diplomas.

We honestly believe this to be a larger list of bona fide graduates than can be shown by any other commercial training school in this section of the West.

If we should include all who have done very satisfactory work, and who have been placed in positions, we could treble the list.

World's Best Golfers Qualifying for British Open Title

HAGEN'S START IS NOT VERY IMPOSING

Title Holder Turns in An 82 For First Eighteen Holes—Eighty Low Scores Among 222 Entrants Quality.

VETERAN JAMES BRAID LEADING WAY AT TROON

TROON, Scotland, June 11.—(United Press)—One of the old guard of British golfers emerged from the past and showed the way to 222 aspirants for the British open title today.

James Braid, whose golfing score of years led the big field, intriumphs date back more than a cluding twelve Americans that sought to qualify for the coveted championship.

The veterans card was 72, one stroke better than that of F. Robinson another Britisher and Jean Cassiat, of France.

TROON, Scotland, June 11.—"Will an American win?" was the only topic across the fairways today as play started in the British open golf championship.

Hagen's start was not imposing. The title holder took an 82 which however, probably will let him reach the next round.

George Aubach of Boston, turned in a card of 80.

J. H. Taylor, veteran British pro, had a 76 and Ted Ray a 77.

MacDonald Smith, one of the American entries, a Californian shot a brilliant 75 over the municipal course.

Robinson Leads Field.

F. Robinson, Britisher, led the field in the mid-afternoon with a 73. Harry Brown of Mexico City retired. Joe Kirkwood, Austrialia, had a card of 76.

Twelve Americans set out after the coveted torphy held by one of them, Walter Hagen, while more than 200 of the finest amateur and professional golfers of Great Britain were arrayed in an effort to win back the title.

The first pair among the 222 entrants got under way at 9:30 a. m. with bright, sunny skies and a slight breeze making this a perfect day for golf.

Five Frenchmen, two South Africans, Angel Delatoore, a Spaniard, H. B. Brown, a Mexican, and Joe Kirkwood, of Australia, were among the challengers for the cup.

Sarazen and Hagen Favored.

Gene Sarazen, American open champion and Walter Hagen who won the British open title last year are regarded as the strongest of the American contestants and the latter has been a joint favorite with George Duncan.

Play today was the first of two qualifying rounds necessary to weed out the big field before the competition proper which starts Thursday. The eighty players of the 222 that started today who turn in the lowest cards will qualify. Medal play was the order thruout.

To Exchange Tickets for Wrestling Show

A new set of tickets has been printed for the Veterans of Foreign Wars' wrestling show to be held Wednesday night at the auditorium. The show as originally scheduled for Landis field but rain forced a postponement. Fans who purchased tickets for the first show will be given preference when they exchange them.

Lincoln got its first public glimpse of Ray Zimmer who meets John Krieger and Gus Clem, who meets Adam Krieger, when they were introduced between games at Landis field Sunday by Harry Reed, referee of the Wednesday night matches.

Many Applications Made to New Club

Many applications have been made for membership in the new country club which is being organized. Altho no membership campaign has been started, maximum membership of 150 is almost complete. Including the original seventy-five charter members, the list now has 125 names on it.

The definite location of the new eighteen hole golf course will be made in the near future. Three sites are now being considered by the board of directors. As soon as the grounds are selected, the membership campaign will be started. Work on the new course will start immediately after the organization has been completed.

Amateurs' Triple Bill Is Postponed

The triple bill of games which were scheduled to be played in the city league were postponed Sunday afternoon on account of wet grounds. This is the second time that a triple bill has been arranged and postponed. The managers of the College View park have tried to stage the opening games for the past two Sundays but have had to call off the games each time because of weather conditions.

JIMMY O'CONNELL HITS STRIDE

McGraw Always Said Coast Beauty Would Come Into His Own.

From the first day that Jimmy O'Connell reported last spring at the Giant training camp visibly burdened under his $75,000 price tag, John McGraw said the youngster would get going if he would be left alone.

O'Connell was left alone and he had a tough time to get going, but he finally hit his stride.

Jimmy O'Connell might have been a sensation from the start if he had cost only 75 cents and if he had been allowed to play his natural position at first base.

YANKS CONCEDING THIRD PLACE TO THE ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, June 11.—Yankee players said, after the series from the road that the Philadelphia Athletics ought to finish in third place. "Miller, Welch and Hauser are the only hitters the Athletics have and their pitchers are good only in flashes," the Yanks say.

The Yanks have better hitting—when they are hitting and better pitching—when they are pitching.

It would not be quite fair to compare the brains of the Yankees with the brains of the Athletics. Nor their spirit.

NAMING ATHLETES FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

Some of Nation's Stars Assured of Places Unless They Hit a Slump—Year Remains Before Big Meet.

NEW YORK, June 11.—With just about a year remaining in which the candidates for the 1924 American Olympic team must be judged and selected, form shown in the early college meets this spring indicates that many of the places on the team are already filled.

While much can be done during the fall and winter season to throw the star athletes off form, it is certain that all the college athletes who think they have a chance to go to Paris will work only to keep themselves in shape and to improve their form.

Some Great Sprinters.

Among the sprinters it is almost certain that Charley Paddock, Alfred LeConey, "Boots" Lever, Fred Lovejoy, Bob McAllister and Irwin will be members of the team.

Woodring of Syracuse, Koppisch of Columbia, Saxby of California, and Taylor of Princeton are prominent candidates for the quarter-mile.

Helffrich and Enock of Penn State, Campbell of Yale and Marsters and Connolly of Georgetown are headliners for the half-mile, and several of them are likely milers, along with Higgins of Columbia, Kirby of Cornell, Booth of Johns Hopkins, McLane of Pennsylvania and Douglas of Yale.

Tootell of Bowdoin and Merchant of California are sure among the hammer throwers, and Neufeld of California and Hills and Thomson of Princeton are almost cinched in the weight events.

Angier of Illinois, Storrs of Yale and Neufeld of California are leaders in the javelin, and Leroy Brown of Dartmouth, Poor of Kansas and Needs of Pennsylvania are as good as "in" among the high jumpers.

Broad Jump Talent.

Great talent has been developed in the broad jump in the past three years. Gourdin, the world's record holder, is available and he, no doubt, will be on the team along with Hubbard of Michigan, Comins of Yale and Rose of Pennsylvania.

Norris of California and Owens of Pennsylvania are leading candidates for the pole vault, and the discus throwers are almost sure to include Neufeld of California, Weatherdon of New York university, Platt of Denver and McMahon of Marquette.

Practically all of these collegians will be newcomers to Olympic competition, and they will probably make the trip with many of the veterans who were in Antwerp in 1920.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

In case of doubt as to whether to use a midiron or a brassie, which should be used?

Answered by Laurie Ayton.

Always a consistent place winner in the big tournaments—National open, Metropolitan open, western open and sectional tournaments. Famed for his accuracy and steadiness under fire.

The midiron should be used because the loft of the midiron blade gives the player more confidence in making the shot and a chap can't play his best shot without confidence. There must always be a smooth lie if the brassie is used, whereas the midiron may be used for rougher lies. The brassie will give the longer distance if the ball has a smooth lie.

STOKES WINS TENTH CONSECUTIVE GAME

Goes in When VanHoutte Hurts His Arm in Seventh Inning of Opener and Blanks Visitors in the Second.

By John Bentley.

Evidently there are more overseas men among the Links than among the Grand Island club. At any rate Buck's clan works better in the mud. They grabbed both ends of a doubleheader Sunday afternoon from the Islanders, the first 5 to 2 and the second 4 to 0. And it was Arthur Stokes, who shoved his consecutive number of wins up to ten, who stood out in the fog.

He went in when VanHoutte hurt his arm in the seventh inning of the first game and held the Islanders to one hit and no runs thru the remaining two innings, returning to the knob in the second game and permitting but three hits in the seven innings of its duration. He gets credit but for one game, however.

In the first game the Islanders drew first blood in the second inning when Cleveland misjudged O'Reilly's fly and then threw high to second. O'Reilly took third on Brookhaus's fly to right and scored on Barry's single.

Links Deadlock Count.

The Links tied the count in the same inning when Dye led off with a single, advancing a peg on Bondurant's sacrifice and scoring on Conkey's single to center.

The Islanders got in their last run in the fourth inning after two were out, Bowman on third and Brookhaus on first. The Island baserunners started a double steal and Conkey's short throw to VanHoutte was low, Bowman crossing.

Conkey drove in two runs with a double in the sixth inning and in the eighth Dye started the session with a blow which was good for two bases. He crossed on Conkey's second two base hit. Stokes singled to left and Conkey scored from second with the help of a low throw by Shupe when he took the ball to relay it. Purdy popped to Thompson. Stokes struck out three of the four batters to face him in Grand Island's last session at bat.

In the second game the Islanders never had more than one man on base at a time and Brookhaus was the only runner to get as far as third. He got to the hot corner on a wild pitch after his double to left.

Links Get Busy Early.

The Links got busy early on Hoetker, singles by Tanner, Cleveland and Dye accounting for two runs in the first frame. In the fifth, Cleeveland went to second when Thompson's throw was wild to first and scored on Dye's double. Dye crossed on Kinkel's single to center. The scores:

Hagen Points Out Differences In British and American Golf Play

Britons put little stock in backspin and bar ribbed faced clubs—refuse to believe until they see.

BY WALTER HAGEN

British Open Champion and Correspondent of the Journal.

(Copyright 1923, in U. S. and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All Rights Reserved).

TROON, Scotland, June 11.—After four British championships and other tournaments on this side of the Atlantic I think I am qualified to pass judgment on golf as played in the two countries. I am not going to criticize the players over here so much as I am going to comment on the style of play.

We believe in America that the most valuable shot in the game is the pitch to the green. It can certainly save a lot of strokes. If one is adept at pitching with the back spin he has a valuable asset indeed American golfers are better at this than the players over here. Of course we have the stoppum club with the ribbed face in America and this saves us a lot of trouble. This club, although originated in England, was barred from tournaments over here. They believe that any cut on the ball should be accomplished with a regular smooth-faced mashie. Some markings may be permitted but these are slight in comparison with the ridges of the ordinary stoppum.

Did Not Change Results.

When we played at St. Andrews this club was in popular use, but since then it has been taboo. We all had to change our clubs last year but the result was just the same. I won the title, Jim Barnes was tied for second, and Jock Hutchison, who has always been a master performer with the ribbed club, was fourth. Jock showed that he could use a smooth-faced club just as well. We proved that we could play the shot just as well for all practical purposes. I think the shot is easier with a ribbed club however, and I am sure all of the boys will agree with me in this respect.

The greens on modern golf courses are becoming more and more trapped and, what is more, the traps are being brought in closer to the greens. British golf courses are undergoing a change in this respect. When I came over here the first time three years ago I noticed that in most cases the greens were fairly open. There were traps to be sure, but they were not as close to the pin as we would like to have them in America.

Necessity is the mother of invention. Naturally we began to devise ways and means of playing a shot that would stick on the green after pitching the ball over a trap. The back spin shot was forced upon us in this respect as we found more than half of the greens guarded by bunkers or water hazards.

Believe Backspin Accident.

The British golf public was a bit skeptical when Barnes and myself first played in England with Duncan and Mitchell as opponents. They did not believe that the back spin shot was as valuable as we had pictured it and one critic, A. C. M. Croom, was not convinced that the ball could be stopped short without any roll. At Addington Park he asked us to demonstrate and we had to show him the shot repeatedly before he would believe that it was not a mere accident. He said that he was all for going to the meeting at St. Andrews and advocating a floater because the small heavy ball could not be managed on the approach to a difficult green.

J. H. Taylor was always regarded as the world's greatest mashie shot player because he used to put a cut on the ball and check the run. He was told at St. Andrews of Jock Hutchison's ability to make a ball jump backward, but admitted later that he thought it was a myth. He said that he would never have believed it possible if he had seen it.

Use Ascending Shot.

The British golfers play mostly the ascending shot, which runs quite a little when it hits the green. They also use the run-up shot much more than we do. The back spin is used by Mitchell and Duncan now and it has become a valuable addition to their game. The ascend-shot means hitting the ball on the upward swing, that is, just as the club is ascending after arriving at the bottom of the arc. The back spin shot must be hit on the downward stroke to give it the backward twist. This is the same principle as in putting English on a billiard ball. The masse shot starts the ball spinning backward, altho it has been hit forward to some degree. Golfers should learn the back spin principle thoroly.

Prize Lunch.

The street car conductor climbed back on to the car puffing audibly, for the warm weather had set in with a rush. "Drat that switchtrack," he exploded. "I suppose once a day a freight may pass over it. Look at the rails, all rusty. Every time we get to it I have to jump down and lumber along ahead, feelin' foolish, to see if the way is clear. I'd probably be stricken helpless by surprise if I did see a train coming."

"We all have foolish or useless jobs to do every day, I suppose," said the passenger, consolingly, "and if a freight train did happen to come along and you weren't there to flag the car think of the poor motorman."

"I suppose you're right," remarked the conductor, eyeing a transfer suspiciously and finally allowing the protesting passenger to pass within. "If that feller had kept quiet, I wouldn't have hesitated to accept the transfer, but, as you saw yourself, immediately as I looked at it, he started to explain, lookin' for trouble, mebbe. Some people like to use a transfer to cover two trips."

"Mean trick!" said the passenger.

The conductor looked up. "Quit your kidding! The company needs every cent it can scrape up to pay my salary.

"I'm not thinking of the motorman up in front, though. We're not speaking these days. Why? It's a story.

"He always brings his lunch, and the other day in gettin' on the car at the barns it slipped out of his pocket I found it and hefted it, then I smelled it, and it made me hungry. He was always praising up his wife's cooking, so, says I to myself, I'll see if she can sling a skillet as well as he claims.

"So I slipped a quarter into his pocket while he wasn't lookin', to pay for it. When it came time to eat he missed his lunch, and there was an awful holler. Then he discovered the extra quarter in his pocket, and he was so puzzled that he nearly forgot his lunch. It seems his wife keeps him on a strictly cash allowance, seein' they are saving money. Finally he went over to the lunchroom by the car barn, complaining all the time. One of the boys told me afterward the restaurant man was going to throw him out for criticizing the eats."

"How was the lunch you picked up?"

"It was good," replied the conductor, "first class in every respect. I finished it to the last crumb. There was a big slice of rhubarb pie. I enjoyed that!"

"Did the motorman find out?" asked the passenger.

"He never would have if I hadn't mentioned rhubarb pie," said the conductor.

"That was a faux pas," said the passenger.

"It was not," said the conductor. "I told you it was rhubarb pie! Your street's next!"

"My mistake," said the passenger—Chicago News.

OIL TOWN'S ACTIVITY CENTERS IN A RODEO

Two-a-day Burlesque Also Bids For Interest—Tommy Gibbons Begins Training and Has Never Looked Better.

By Henry L. Farrell.

SHELBY, Mont., June 11.—(Copyright, 1923, by United Press.)—With Tommy Gibbons working, a rodeo going full blast, a burlesque show doing two-a-day and a squad of dry sleuths snooping around, Shelby today became a real busy burg.

The whole town is enthusiastic for everything and everybody but the dry agents, and the word was passed that the skids are being prepared for them.

Find Some Bottled Beer.

Several night raids were made on the outskirts and a few bottles of beer confiscated. The "Days of '49" has changed its glaring billboard sign to read the "Days of 1923" and "The Chicken Shack" has painted out its sign, becoming nameless for the time being. Business became so bad at "The Black Cat" that admission now is charged for a view of what was "The Blue Mouse" has been turned into a hot dog stand.

While the night life is dead, the town folks swarm to the rodeo where hard boiled cow punchers lather around the wire and razz the horses and riders.

"Feed 'em oats," the punchers yelled when a timid gray came out and refused to buck.

Forced To Grab Leather.

"Leggo, leggo," they shouted the next minute when a puncher on a sorrel "grabbed leather," when he was about to take a nose dive to the dirt. When a puncher "grabs leather" he forfeits a five spot that goes to the unthrown rider.

Attorney General Rankin left last night after two days of inspection. He intimated that the inspection would be continued. Several state agents are here and customers have to know how to knock before the doors are opened at most of the resorts.

Strangers are beginning to fill the town. Hotels are crowded and some tent dormitories are doing business.

Gibbons started his training Sunday and will continue this afternoon with a short workout. The challenger who is to meet Jack Dempsey July 4 never looked better. He went so fast that he had to be called off by his trainer.

Big Advance Sale.

Mike Collins and the promoters are away today making a final round of the northwest distributing tickets. Collins said before leaving that a careful check of the returns showed the sales had now gone beyond $750,000.

When Liquor Is Medicine.

Great is the power of interpretation. The supreme court says that no foreign ships may have any liquor aboard them when they come within our three-mile limit. But our treasury department is ready with an interpretation by which all such liquor is turned into medicine immediately on crossing the three-mile limit coming this way and put under the care of the ship's doctor to be turned into good liquor again as soon as the ship passes out beyond the three-mile limit and then turned over to the care of the ship's bartender.—Lawrence Telegram.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, June 11.—Heavy selling, together with a lack of demand caused prices to decline on the Chicago board of trade today.

Previous buyers who sought to sell wheat on receipt of better crop news found it difficult to secure buyers. There was absolutely no export demand.

Another weakening factor was a report from Nebraska which showed an increase of 70 per cent in the spring wheat acreage due largely to reseeding of abandoned winter wheat acreage.

Shading of premiums caused an easier feeling in corn. The cash market was dull and erratic. Feeder demand had practically disappeared with heavier livestock shipments.

Oats were lower with good crop reports, free offerings and large receipts.

Provisions were firmer.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Prices were higher and the market strong at the opening of the Chicago board of trade today.

Flood conditions in the southwest brought heavy buying of wheat at the opening. A strong Liverpool market also had effect in sentiment.

Receipts of 25 cars were heavier than expected.

Corn met considerable selling pressure after the opening advance. A more favorable attitude was taken by traders with regard to the rains in the southwest. Receipts were heavy at 150 cars, the largest shipment for some time.

Oats were higher in sympathy with other grains. The market was neglected. Receipts were 150 cars.

Lower cables and a weak hog market caused declines in provisions.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, June 11.—There has been too much rain in the southwest and a wet harvest is feared with disappointing threshing returns.

Many things can happen to both wheat crops, as well as other grains between now and harvest. Europe has a better crop prospect than last year and Russia is expected to do some exporting.

Exporting countries will have more than enough grain to go around and importing countries are expected to need less for the coming season.

Corn prices are so high that new speculative buying is limited. At the same time receipts so light and stocks decreasing so rapidly that traders hesitate to sell freely.

The corn crop is late, owing to unfavorable weather conditions and unusual amount of re-planting has been necessary. There can still b eliberal deterioration in the oats crop with danger of insufficient supplies for domestic and export requirements.

While rye prospect is under last year's, a lessenede foreign demand will leave enough for all domestic and expor tsales.

Supplies of meats are unusually heavy for June, western points having 372,000,000 pounds, against 231,000,000 pounds last year. —Lamson.

Grain Market Opinions.

Harris-Winthrop & Co.: Wheat news is regarded as bullish.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: A bull market hinges on export buying and better speculative support.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: The one thing lacking is outside support.

Thomson-McKinnon: Aside from the crop situation in the southwest there is nothing to encourage the bullish enthusiastic buying of wheat; we cannot bull corn above 80.

Logan & Bryan: We favor a conservatively bullish position in wheat.

Hulburd-Warren & Chandler: We would buy wheat only on weak spots.

Stein-Alstryn: We look for sustained firmness in wheat and oats but feel that corn may ease off.—Lamson.

Omaha Livestock Market.

OMAHA, June 11.—Cattle — Receipts, 5,800. A let-up in receipts brought about a recovery of part of last week's decline in prices and the market was fairly active and steady to 10@25c higher, most of the advance being on the desirable light and handyweight steers. Choice heavy beeves sold up to $10.75. Cow stuff was also in active demand and around 10@15c higher than the close of last week, while stockers and feeders were in very limited supply and showed very little change in prices.

Hogs—Receipts, 10,000. The hog market today was 10@15c lower than last week's close. Shippers bought largely at $6.15@6.20, with a top of $6.25. Packers bid $6.05@6.15, the latter range probably being the bulk for the day.

Sheep—Receipts, 4,700. Demand for fat lambs continues good and the market was steady to a trifle higher today. Feeder lambs are about steady and aged stuff weak. Fat lambs, good to choice, were quoted at $13.25@14.00, spring lambs $15.00@15.35 and fat ewes $4.00@5.00.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, June 11.—After displaying dullness and indecision most of the day, stocks developed some activity at rising prices in the afternoon under the stimulus of a drive against the shorts in California Petroleum and special strength in high priced industrials of the calibre of Woolworth, Kresge and General Electric.

Rails maintained their prominence over the industrials from the standpoint of activity, but nothing like Saturday's ratio of two-thirds rails and one-third industrials was kept up. With the railroad average in the highest round since April 20, profit-taking was an actual development and selling of this character appeared in a number of recent favorites.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Rails were strong at the opening of the stock market today with a fairly active turnover. The general list of the industrials were slightly higher, while the oils showed little change. The largest part of the trading was in railroad issues with Atlantic Coast Line up ⅞. Baltimore & Ohio up ⅛. N. & W. gained ¾, while New York Central was unchanged at 102⅜.

Equipment stocks showed strength. American Locomotive was up ¾ and Baldwin ⅛. Steel, common, was ¾ under Saturday's last at 96⅝, and Standard Oil of California opened at 53⅛, up ¾.

Sentiment in Wall street was favorable on the announcement of the rapid sale of $25,000,000 Austrians' bonds.

Opening prices: New York Central 102⅜; Cuban-American Sugar 30, up ½; St. Paul 23⅞, up ⅛; N. & W. 110⅞, up ⅞; Studebaker $112⅛; General Asphalt 33, off ½; Baldwin 133¼, up ⅝; U. S. Steel 96⅝, off ½; Consolidated Gas 62⅛; California Petroleum 103¾; Atchison 103¾; New Haven 18⅞; American Can 100⅛, off ¾; Atlantic Coast Lines 121⅝, up ⅞.

FRIENDS ONCE BUT NOT NOW

SUPREME COURT RECORDS REVEAL BROKEN FRIENDSHIP.

Two [illegible] Pals Marry Two Girl Chums and Start Love Nests in Same House; Women Quarrel and Men Up in Arms.

Not until the supreme court says that she must pay Arthur Marvin will Mrs. Tillie Schlagenhauf consent to a judgment being jointly entered against her and her husband George. Not a very large amount of money is involved, but that is not the issue.

Arthur and George were chums in Omaha. They became acquainted with two girls who were also chums, and in the course of events a double wedding was pulled off. Marvin was the better fixed financially, and he hired a house big enough for the two love nests. It was the agreement that the Schlagenhaufs should pay the Marvins $8 a week and pay half the weekly bill for groceries.

Within six weeks the two women quarreled over some trivial matter and the Schlagenhaufs pulled up and out and did not pay their rent or their half of what was due on the groceries. Marvin sued them. He got a judgment in the municipal court at Omaha, but the other side appealed. Again he won out in district court, and again the one-time pals appealed. So it is that the supreme court must now decide the controversy.

The dispute is largely narrowed down to whether Marvin can recover a joint judgment for the entire amount sued upon when part of the money he claims was loaned to George before his marriage in order to finance the wedding. The wife says that a judgment can be secured against her only when the account is for necessaries of life.

STORY IS NOT VERIFIED

Report Again Bobs Up That the C. & N. W. is to Purchase the K. C. & N. W. Railway.

Kansas City newspapers contained a story last Saturday that a contract is soon to be let for the rebuilding of the Kansas City & Northwestern railroad and an extension of that railroad from Virginia, Neb., to Beatrice. The story went on to say that the road probably had been acquired by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, and that a connection would be built of the two roads between Beatrice and Lincoln.

Northwestern officials who were in Nebraska Saturday and discussed railroad matters with friends and officials of the road on the lines west gave no hint of any such purchase or plan. Louis Cass, receiver for the Kansas City and Northwestern, has made no announcement concerning any deal involving his railroad.

CITY HAS EYE-TEETH CUT ON MATERIAL PURCHASES.

If Pipe Purchased For Wrecked Main to Disposal Plant, a Bond Required in Sum of $35,000.

Replacement of the partially wrecked section of main leading to the sewage disposal plant, was placed before the council Monday by Commissioner Cowgill after the street department head had locked himself in his office with this subject thruout the morning. The Martin-Day company offers to do the entire job or the digging only and will furnish a $35,000 bond as guaranteen that the proposed reinforced concrete pipe will not collapse short of five years from date of laying. The Lock-Joint Pipe company of Kansas City was present with a like guarantee. The Keystone Pipe & Construction company of Nebraska City is after the job but according to the commissioner, will not put up the bond.

Mr. Cowgill stated that in the long run the city pays for the bond regardless of who furnishes it. If, he said, the council should award the contract to the Nebraska City firm, insurance could be purchased of Lloyd's of London.

"One thing is certain," he said. "If we get a patented pipe, we must have a bond back of it."

There's a possibility that the buck-passing practice indulged in between the city of Lincoln and the sanitary district board, may come to an end. The council is in receipt of a section of the minutes of a meeting of the board some two years ago. A motion was put and carried that outlet sewers, constructed by the board within the city, upon completion and acceptance, be turned over to the city for operation, maintenance and liability.

There are some five miles of these sewers leading out thru Normal and into branches. They reach to the edge of College View. Complaints have been chased by the council to the board and by the board to the council. The city probably will settle the question of responsibility by acceptance.

FISH FOLLOW RAILROAD TRACKS

Game Warden Reports Good Fishing From Hyannis to Seneca.

Chief Game Warden George G. Koster has returned from Hyannis where he seined a car load of large bull heads from a lake. The fish were planted in waters near York, Ashland and Alliance. On the out-trip he had a car load of bass fry which were planted in lakes in the northwest. Mr. Koster alleges the bull heads taken from Haynie's lake near Hyannis, weighed one and one-half pounds each and every one of them. He said fish, mostly bull heads, are being caught all along the railroad right of way from Hyannis to Seneca. They came out of lakes that have overflowed this spring. Chains of lakes and ditches along the Burlington railroad form a continuous sheet of water which enables the fish to travel from their original home into the waters of the Loup river.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

Owning or Owned.

Some friends of ours are having a wonderful time this spring because they have just come into possession of an automobile.

I fancy the husband would be surprised if he should see that statement.

He would say: "Why I bought that automobile last September and used it all the fall. Why do you say we just came into possession of it?"

THE CROSSING COP

But I know the wife would understand perfectly.

An Ornament, Not a Utility.

For this is what she said to me: "We are really enjoying our automobile this year. You know last year it was so new and shiny and lovely, and we were so afraid we would hurt it, that we didn't have much fun out of it. Those first two months we used to inspect it every time we took it out, and dust it off and look for scratches, and if we found a new scratch on it that just spoiled the day for Henry. He wouldn't take it out if it was rainy, or if it had been raining and was muddy; and if we were going somewhere and found an oily road he would turn back, and he never wanted to go off the main road because the little roads are apt to be dusty. He hated any narrow country road because once he was pushed over into the bushes and scratched the car terribly. And then one day in the late fall we got caught in a frightful storm and got the car all muddy, and when we had it washed the garage man scratched it and ruined some of the varnish by using too much soap.

They Own a Car Now.

"I was simply heartbroken when I saw it. I didn't mind so much myself, but I knew Henry would feel terribly. And what do you suppose he said? He felt badly at first, and then he just took a deep breath and said: 'Well, I'm sorry it happened, but maybe it isn't such a misfortune, after all. We'll stop worrying about it now and enjoy it next spring, and maybe that will be just as good.'"

"And you like that way just as well?" I askde.

"Do I!" she echoed. "I feel as tho we never really owned a car before."

They didn't. The car owned them. And that's what I mean by their having just come into possession of a car.

I know a woman who has a wonderfully competent maid who gives her perfect food and service. She knows that maid could leave her at any time and get as good a position or better. And her life is dominated and restricted by the fear of losing that treasure.

If You Care Too Much.

I know another woman who puts up with a comparatively incompetent maid because she says the maid cares more about staying than she does about keeping her and so she is never nervous about her. When the other woman boasts of her treasure she is not in the least envious. "I could get a treasure, too," she says, "if I were willing to give up my peace of mind."

To be thrifty and careful about what one owns seems to me commendable. I hate the careless indifference that abuses and destroys a possession. Even if one has the money to buy another, that means that some of the world's labor power is devoted to produce a second article when it might have been used for better purposes if you had taken reasonable care of the first one.

But reasonable care is one thing. And the care that makes such a fetich of preserving and guarding a possession that one cannot get any real use or pleasure out of it, is quite another thing.

Between the two extremes, as always, lies the golden mean.

MEN AND THINGS

The short ballot movement in Nebraska is launched at the best possible time for its success. Certainly the people, with what happened last winter at the statehouse in mind, will want to take steps to prevent the repetition of a farce played at their expense. The purpose of the short ballot is to fix responsibility in the governor. It, of course, centralizes power, but what of that? Isn't it about time that we absorb a new idea about government? Are we afraid of ourselves and of democracy?

Government is a reservoir of power collected from the people or, more properly speaking, contributed by them. They then elect men to administer their affairs by the exercise of this power. The sum total of this power is no greater when exercised by one man than by half a dozen or a dozen men. The people who have given over this power neither gain anything or lose anything in either event, so far as their liberties or privileges are concerned, as long as none of it is misused, but unless it is centralized in one man they are powerless to fix responsibility when any part of that power is embezzled.

Is your town suffering from an overplus of suspicious characters who have no visible means of support and whose brows run rather low on their foreheads? Is your town harboring those poor miserable creatures who are willing otbarter their bodies and their hope of peace on earth and their hope of heaven for a few pieces of silver? If so, schedule a prize fight between two higher-ups in the pugilistic world. If your city officials are not susceptible to any other argument, they will listen to one bottomed on what's good business. See newspapers for dispatches from Shelby, Mont.

Every day the newspapers print long extracts from the public records showing the number and description of mortgages filed and released. The amazing thing about it is that the net total is always increasing. The number of new mortgages always keeps ahead of the number of releases. This has continued for many years. Without thinking it over, one would naturally conclude that this means a grand bustup some day, but the real test is whether we are increasing the percentage of loans to values. It is quite natural that the total mortgage indebtedness should increase with an increase in property values.

Business judgment undoubtedly justifies the borrowing of money to be repaid in the future for the purpose of financing present requirements, but the principle is not defensible when applied to human lives. Too many young people are mortgaging their futures insofar as health, opportunity and fitness for striving are concerned merely that they may have a little added enjoyment or fun at the present time. Somebody ought to tell them that there is not now, if there ever was, any truth in the proverb that they should get their fun now because when they get old they won't be capable of enjoyment. Look about you and see.

The war-weary world will gain renewed courage from the milder and more sensible tone of the recent exchanges between the French and German governments. The adoption of a plan by which German payments can be guaranteed and the strain on French finances relieves will have a stabilizing effect on the whole world of commerce. The strong men in both governments would be able to settle the whole matter in a few days if it were not for the fact that the French people have been promised impossible sums by the French politicians while the German junker-controlled press has so played upon the natural feelings of the German people that they are no more willing to approve a proper settlement than are the French people.

Speaking of how times change, who would have supposed that the governor could have named a member of the nonpartisan league as head of the banking department of the state and consequently the arbiter of the fate of the state banking system, without creating a revolution? K. C. Knudson, who has been selected for that post by Governor Bryan, is a paidup member and in good standing of the league at the present time, says F. L. Bollen, who makes out the receipts. And nothing has yet happened!

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

A very homely Irishman had lost his job and was having a hard time finding another, when an acquaintance met him one day.

"Hello, Pat. How are ye?" he said.

"Mighty bad," was Pat's reply. "Sure 'tis starvation that's starin' me in the face."

"Is that so?" the other rejoined. "Sure it can't be very pleasant for ayther av yez."—St. Louis Star.

ABE MARTIN

Before we have any more "ten greatest" contests let's all git t'gether on what constitutes greatness. If some folks profit by their mistakes they must be awful tightwads.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd)

7 Minutes to Answer This.

While traveling in Arabia, I one day sat down to luncheon at a roadside tent with two natives, who provided a frugal repast of bread. One man contributed five loaves and the other three, and I accepted their invitation on condition that I should be permitted to pay for my portion of the meal. We had equal shares of eight loaves, which were entirely consumed, and upon taking my leave, I laid down eight pieces of silver to pay for my part of the banquet. The contributor of the five loaves appropriated five pieces of the silver, and left three for his partner, who objected to the division and insisted on half of the money. I refused to adjudicate the matter off-hand, but figured it out as I strolled along on my journey. How do you think they should have equitably divided the eight coins?
